Even in this day of flaming youth, mature age still has its usefulness. The average age of our Supreme Court justices is 71 years. Twenty-six years ago last Saturday Chief Justice Hughes took his seat on the Supreme Court bench. President Taft rendered public service by appointing him to succeed Justice Brewer.

He left the bench to run for President against Woodrow Wilson, and would doubtless have been elected had he not gone to California. Had he been elected he would have remained in the United States and probably would have saved the country ten thousand million dollars that Woodrow Wilson shoveled out in his ecstasy of self approval.

Rioting in London's "mile end road" in which the faces of men and women were slashed with razor blades and one man was thrown through a shop window, etc., seems rather "un-English," to put it mildly. Fist fighting has been encouraged by distinguished Englishmen, including judges, on the ground that it is "better than using knives."

It is better, doubtless, but what about the razor blades?

Fortunately, English judges do not take kindly to razor blade crimes; if they get the slashers the latter will regret it. In a London garrotting epidemic years ago, after a few criminals had been arrested for choking and robbing citizens, the judges' first order in every case was "give him twenty lashes." The garrotting stopped.

This the important news of the year: the Pulp and Paper Laboratory of Savannah announces, through Dr. Hertz, a cheap method of extracting from southern pine trees, rosin fats valuable for soap making and other purposes. And extracting of the fats makes it possible to produce from southern pines the finest grade of bond and book paper, and to use the pines for the manufacture of rayon. This invention might supply the south with a crop to take the place of cotton in case our export cotton market should vanish entirely, thanks to foreign planting and home-grown foolishness.

Germany honors its youngest grandfather, Herman Jahnke, farm laborer, 36 years old. Married at 17, his eldest daughter became a mother at seventeen.

If all you want is children that record is satisfactory, although any mouse family could beat it by 25,000 per cent, and almost any microbe by a billion per cent.

If good children were desired, it would have been better for Mr. Jahnke to have his first child at 36, and his first grandchild at sixty or seventy; at least that was Plato's opinion.

Japan until recently convinced, mistakenly, that this country is her enemy, and for excellent reasons keeping close watch on Russia and her anti-Japanese Vladivostok airplane and submarine base, now turns suspicious attention on dear old John Bull. The newspaper Kokumin says "the British government is organizing a large scale international conspiracy against Japan."

Britain is supposed to have asked nine nations to protest against Japan's demands on China. That should not worry Japan too much. The same old John Bull got fifty-one nations to protest Mussolini's attack on Ethiopia; but paying no attention, the able Italian went ahead swallowing Ethiopia; sending little Haile Selassie to live in England.

New York State in August makes health record never before equalled. Considering the slums, the millions of children that never see the country, the statistics reflect great credit on city management and medical skill. This nation still holds the world's disgraceful record in the number of deaths of mothers in childbirth; but New York's rate for August was only 43 per 10,000 births.

Of babies born alive, only 37 in 1000 died. That is an improvement on the old days when the big city asylum for abandoned and other infants killed them off about as fast as they arrived, with poisoned milk and brutal neglect.

Citizens should never forget their debt to Isaac Nathan Straus, who, despite the opposition of milk dealers, and a great many ignorant doctors, fought for, and obtained, a pure milk supply, using much of his own fortune in the process.

Italians have preserved through centuries the energy

JAIL CHEF AS WITNESS IN SACK CASE

Held in $50,000 as a material witness in connection with the baffling murder of Grayce Asquith, Oscar V. Bartolini, 50, of Quincy, one of her several admirers, collapsed when he was locked up in Dedham jail today.

A stolid figure during nearly a week of police questioning and at his arraignment in crowded Quincy district court this morning, he first lost his iron nerve and wept as photographers snapped his picture while he was being taken to jail.

He cried:

"No! No! No!"

And this was all he said.

He continued to lose control of himself during the fast trip to jail in a police car, and when the jail was reached he was sobbing loudly and trembling so that he could hardly walk.

CRIES IN HIS CELL

Once in his cell he refused lunch and continued to cry, and jail officials said that a doctor would be called for him unless his condition improved.

As a necessary preliminary to his arraignment as a material witness, a warrant charging "John Doe" with the murder of the Weymouth "Merry Widow" was issued by Dist. Attorney Lawrence W. Lyons. Police Chief Edward F. Butler of Weymouth signed the complaints.

ROUT STRIKERS WITH TEAR GAS

Franklin, Oct. 13—Tear gas, stones and clubs were used this afternoon in a clash between police, deputies and more than 200 strikers outside the Hayward Mill on Union street.

The clash started when 15 local police, under Chief Walter Berg, and half a dozen deputies tried to prevent mass picketing at the mill gates.

Bones were hurled at the officers, who retaliated with swinging clubs, later using tear gas to disperse the crowd. Several on both sides were hurt.

A call was sent in to the state police barracks at Foxboro, a squad of troopers responding.

Dit Clapper Saves 3 in River

Hastings, Ont., Oct. 13 (AP)—Three duck-hunting companions of Aubrey (Dit) Clapper of the Boston Bruins National League hockey team sat dryday he saved three men from drowning in the Trent river.

Clapper, clothed in a windbreaker, several sweaters and hip boots, plunged into the chilly river to get help when the canoe in which the four were hunting became swamped in rough water yesterday.

Clad only in underwear in near-freezing temperature, he swam ashore, borrowed oars from an astonished farmer and rowed after the others—Cecil Scriver, Walter Whitred and Alton Thompson—who had drifted a half mile downstream clinging to the capsized canoe.

Whitred had collapsed and slipped from the canoe three times but was pulled back each time by Thompson. All three had discarded their clothing.

When Clapper reached them, after almost an hour, Whitred was so exhausted he could not speak and was lifted out of the water and put in the bottom of the rowboat.

Clapper suffered badly cut and bruised feet but physicians said all four were in good condition today.

LANDON AIMS TO GIVE NEEDY REAL JOBS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Detroit, Oct. 13—Centering his spotlight on a new "Forgotten Man"—those millions of Americans who have refused federal relief although entitled to it—Governor Alfred M. Landon, today, on his way here, pledged an administration that will furnish real jobs at good wages to every person seeking regular employment.

The Republican nominee cheered enthusiastically by great crowds throughout Ohio's industrial areas, carried his presidential campaign into Detroit and the State of Michigan, arriving at 12:40.

The G. O. P. nominee was given a rousing ovation from more than 5000 persons who assembled at the depot.

In the motor capital, he had scheduled a luncheon and a meeting with Henry Ford and his third major address tonight on re-employment of America's 11 million idle unemployed.

The address tonight goes on the radio at 9 p. m.

RAPS DEAL BLUNDERS

TO VISIT CARDINAL

Papal Aide On Way to Boston

Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, motored toward Boston from New York today to pay a visit to Cardinal O'Connell, dean of the Catholic hierarchy in America, at the latter's home in Brighton.

Whether the two eminent churchmen will discuss Father Coughlin remained a mystery. The radio priest was back in Boston today after spending last evening in Providence.

Many believe that the chief reason for the Italian cardinal's visit to America is to investigate Father Coughlin's political activities, but no word of such a purpose has escaped the lips of the prince of the church.

Bishop Francis J. Spellman of Newton, who was for years attached to the Vatican staff, is accompanying Cardinal Pacelli on his New England trip.

They made their first stop at New Haven, where Cardinal Pacelli visited the national headquarters of the Knights of Columbus. Their next stop was at Hartford for luncheon at St. Joseph's College. They left for Boston immediately after luncheon.

Claudette Colbert Suffering From Skull Fracture

(Copyright, 1936, by International News Service)

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 13—Behind the laconic announcement that Claudette Colbert will be away from the set for another week is a reason that Hollywood never suspected until today.

The star has been suffering from a basal skull fracture.

Admission of the serious nature of the injury was made today by those close to Miss Colbert, although she is now out of all danger and is recuperating rapidly.

At the time of the motor accident in which a car crashed into her standing machine, Miss Colbert thought she had escaped with a bad bump on her head, her intimates revealed.

Her collapse on the "Maid of Salem" set the next day was the first indication of more serious injury. Specialists were summoned, and it was then that the star was discovered to be suffering from a basal skull fracture.

According to attending physicians, delayed symptoms are common in cases of the sort.

KILLERS SAFE AS SHE ENDS OWN LIFE

Four men, who bear the brand of murder on their hearts as truly as Cain the Murderer was ever marked, walk the streets in freedom today.

But the woman they "murdered" was found drowned in Flax Pond in Lynn.

She was Mrs. Bertha A. O'Connor, a 43-year-old mother, who worked in a laundry in Cambridge every day and then went to her home in Chestnut street, Lynn, at night.

On the night of June 1, four men in an automobile, one brandishing a pistol, forced her into their car within half a block of her house.

They beat her and then attacked her and then threw her out into the Saugus woods, dazed, hysterical, but still able to tell her pitiful story.

Today the screams of a woman—of a woman that proved to be Mrs. O'Connor—attracted the attention of George Cummings of Carter road, Lynn, and he called police.

CALLS IT SUICIDE

Twelve police officers responded to the alarm that Cummings sent out. But it wasn't until they obtained a rowboat and covered the surface of Flax Pond itself that they found the reason for the screams.

The reason was the poorly-clad body of a woman of 43, the woman who had been abducted and beaten and attacked last June.

LANDON LASHES DEAL'S RELIEF, PLEDGES MORE JOBS

G. O. P. CHIEF IN MICHIGAN: CHEERED BY OHIO CROWDS

the four years of depression.

Landon said:

"The present national administration has spent 25 billion dollars, of which 7,500,000,000 dollars has been spent for relief. The proof of its failure is that there are still eleven million of our fellow citizens without jobs.

"But there is another aspect to the situation. It is not only the unemployed who must be provided for until they can find real jobs to provide more adequately for the futures of themselves and their families.

"There are thousands of good Americans, fully entitled to it, who have refused aid. Somehow they have got along. To these, also, we have an obligation. Regular employment at good wages must be found for them as well."

TRIBUTE TO LABOR

At Toledo, Landon went boldly into the labor question. He paid high tribute to the successes of organized labor in America. Hegraciously credited labor with having won a compensation benefits, industrial accident insurance, child labor laws and relief from injunction cases.

"Look abroad and you will find that where autocrats and dictators have sprung up from class hatred, where organized labor through its shortsighted leadership, has participated in the political creation of new governments, organized labor has been destroyed," he said. "Trade unionism has been made a statutory tyrant in many nations. The workers people have become serf of a state.

"Only last week in a European nations, hours of work in industry were increased 50 per cent without wage adjustment by the fiat of a single man.

"Organized labor in the United States must zealously and eternally guard its independence. It should beware of the temptations and illusory promises that are being offered to it by any government.. No matter how flattering and enticing these offers may appear at the moment, they mean ultimate dictation by politics.

"I am absolutely opposed to any infringement on the rights of labor to organize and any curtailment of the right of freedom of assembly. It is the government's duty to protect labor and the people in these rights.

SORRY LABOR SPLIT

"I, for one, am sorry to see the recent split in the ranks of labor and hope that it will be speedily healed. The great gains made by labor through its organizations are in danger so long as this division exists. Here, again, unity is requisite for progress and achievement."

In Cleveland, Landon declared federal relief was a "temporary problem" because America's ingenuity could solve it, but that the administration's injection of political influence in operations constituted a "national scandal."

Landon proposed a new five-point federal relief program. It was:

1. A major reform by returning the administration of relief to the states.

2. Creation of a system of federal "grants-in-aid" to the states, conditioned on (a a fair proportional contribution by the state and local governments, (b) selection of state administrators on a basis of merit and fitness, and (c) encouragement to those who try to become self-supporting.

3. Creation of an efficient federal employment service for the purpose of taking workers off relief rolls.

4. Undertaking of federal public works only on their merits, with an end to use of relief labor, at relief wages, for the construction of such projects.

5. Provision of federal relief funds so long as the need for relief exists.

Raps New Deal Relief Waste

Speaking in Cleveland, Governor Alfred M. Landon, Republican presidential candidate, declared the New Deal relief plan was a national scandal.

Gov. Landon's Cleveland Address in Full

Tonight I want to talk about the most urgent human problem of the millions of men and women of this country—our fellow citizens—the core of jobs and the many more millions who are on relief.

I am going to discuss our government's responsibility for the protection of these men and women on relief and how they can again find employment at real jobs, paying the best of good wages. Before I go further, let me repeat a pledge I have made from Kansas to Maine. If I am elected chief executive of this country, the federal budget is going to be balanced, but it is not going to be balanced at the expense of our needy unemployed. They are entitled to ample relief for their needs, and I shall see that they get it.

In approaching this human problem of relief, the first thing is the fact that we encounter in this. Nobody in America tonight knows exactly how many of our fellow citizens are out of work, nobody knows how many are on relief. The Federal government, the Washington does not know. This is inexcusable.

Classify Fossils

This administration has found time to make tourist guide books. It has found money to classify fossils. It has spent seven and one-half billion dollars of the taxpayers' money in the name of relief. But it has found neither time nor money to inform itself of the extent and nature of the relief problem. In a matter that directly involves one-sixth of our people, this is, to say the least, crazie neglect.

The American Federation of Labor says there are over 11,000,000 unemployed. There appear to be about 20,000,000 on relief. This is the situation to be dismissed with talk of rising stock market prices in New York. It cannot be turned aside by boasting of corporation profits. This is a situation that must be faced openly and with courage.

We are a generous people. We have gladly responded for our fellow citizens, who, through no fault of their own, have been deprived of their employment. We shall continue to be liberal.

But liberality is not enough. We have human ideals as well as mere dollars. We have the duty of administering relief so wisely and so economically that our human values will not be destroyed. And we have the duty of doing everything within our power to assist real recovery. That means to get real jobs for the unemployed.

In both these duties the present administration has a record of miserable failure.

Cites Relief

Money intended for the relief of human suffering is being diverted to the building up of a shameless political machine. No professions of warm humanity can hide this fact.

Our hearts go out to these millions of our own people who through no fault of their own have been the victims of this debasement of relief funds for political purposes.

But even that is not the worst that has happened under this administration. They may call it reform, they may call it national planning, but the ugly fact is the members of this administration have condemned one-sixth of our people to live in a separate economic world of their own. Isolated from the main stream of our national life, they have been catalogued, registered, regimented and controlled by a federal bureaucracy which dominates their every act. All that they can hope for is the bare necessities of life. In this separate world they are deprived of the hope and opportunity that is their birthright.

Surely it is our imperative duty to help these millions of men and women free themselves from dependence on government. We must help them win back their independence.

Want Jobs

Our people want to stand on their own feet. I do not agree for a moment with those who say that a large group of our fellow citizens prefer relief to honest work. Every self-respecting American wants a recovery that will bring real jobs at real pay. We all know that this is the only final solution to the relief problem.

After three years it must be obvious to every one that waste and extravagance do not make jobs. Cracking down on business and arousing class hatreds do not restore employment. Recovery and re-employment will never come while honest business is forced to tip toe through a series of breathing spells.

The way to recovery is for the government to stop trying to run the lives of 130,000,000 people. If the government will do this, if it will give American initiative a chance, eleven million men and women will not long be looking vainly for jobs.

We refuse to believe these members of this administration who say this nation has passed its last frontier of opportunity—those prophets of despair who claim that never again will there be work in this country for everybody. This doctrine of despair has been preached time and time before. Always it has been given the lie by the inventiveness, the energy and the self-reliance of the American people.

There is still work to be done in this country—and in abundance—far more work than planners in Washington realize, or can ever provide.

Must Give Aid

Common sense tells us that complete re-employment cannot take place overnight. Our sense of duty tells us that until there are jobs for all we must provide relief. Unlike the administration, however, I view relief as a temporary problem.

The first step toward solving it is to forget about politics and fix our attention upon the needs of the unemployed.

Everybody knows there is too much politics in relief. This has become a national scandal. The evidence of this playing of politics has been supported by documented and sworn testimony, published in every part of the land.

It is a disgrace to the administration. It is more than that. It is a humiliation to the American people. I am dedicated to the proposition that henceforth no American citizen shall ever again be put in the position where he has to sell his vote for bread.

Now I am going to discuss the flagrant mismanagement of relief by this administration. It has diverted hundreds of millions of dollars intended for relief to non-relief purposes. It has used relief as an experimental playground for every foolish fad and pet theory that came along.

The whole program has lacked any sound, practical, clear-headed planning. What a record for an administration that wants to arrange the details of the entire economic life of our people!

After nearly four years this administration should have definite ideas on how to meet the relief problem. But it must be obvious to everyone that it has none. Look at its record.

In the spring of 1933 an elaborate program was started. The FERA was to help the states take care of actual need. The Public Works Administration and the NRA were to provide work for millions. But by this time autumn came around, it was discovered that these plans had failed.

And so another alphabetical agency was set up, the CWA. It ran for just four months.

For the next ten months the administration went back to the old FERA. Then in January, 1935, the President told Congress:

"The federal government must and shall quit this business of relief. I am not willing that the vitality of our people be further sapped by the giving of cash, of market baskets, of a few hours of weekly work, cutting grass, raking leaves, or picking up papers in the public parks."

He, therefore, asked Congress for a blank check of $4,880,000,000 to start a new program—the so-called program of work relief.

So in May, 1935, the WPA was introduced, and for the next few months we had both FERA and WPA. And so it has gone, men and women have been shifted from home relief to work relief, and back to home relief again. The plain fact of the matter is they still don't know where they stand. All they know is they are in the grip of their political exploiters.

Plans Failed

In this piling of program upon program there has been no progress whatsoever. Men are still looking in vain for an effective plan of relief. Instead of getting into the open, we have more red tape, and more politics.

This probably explains why the administration has deliberately kept the country in the dark. It has consistently refused to make available the clear cut relief figures on the use of relief funds. Even our federal and state legislative bodies cannot get their questions answered satisfactorily.

Last spring, the Pennsylvania State Legislature appointed a committee to investigate relief. At once, the non-political director of the WPA instructed employes not to answer questions. Next, the Department of Justice furnished lawyers to all the witnesses to help them carry out that order. Finally, an assistant attorney-general appeared in person and obtained an injunction against the committee to prevent a highly proper investigation. This is an incredible thing in free America.

What figures have been made public are strangely contradictory. For example, in May, 1933, the average cost of each relief case was $15.15 a month. Twenty months later the cost had doubled. It was $30.45 per month. But why the cost doubled, they won't tell us.

High Relief Cost

We are told that in 1935, the cost per case for relief in Nevada was $866.00 a year, while in the nearby state of Idaho it was only $454.00. Why? They won't tell us.

We are told that under the FERA the cost of administration—the overhead—in South Carolina was 18 per cent. But in Vermont it was only 5½ per cent. Why? They won't tell us.

It is time we demanded an answer.

On January 3, 1934, the President told Congress:

"If we maintain the course I have outlined, we can confidently look forward to greater employment and a diminution of relief expenses."

We did maintain the course he outlined, but did we get any reduction of relief expenses? We did not. At present the administration is spending in the name of relief at an annual rate of a billion and a half more than in 1934.

And yet, less than two weeks ago in Pittsburgh the President told us that we had a more rapid recovery than even he had anticipated. And the band played, "Happy Days are Here Again."

No one objects to the money spent if it goes to those actually in need. But I do condemn the mismanagement which keeps the unemployed in a condition of misery while providing good salaries for the favored few.

Hits Politics

It is not a question of how much the unemployed are getting; it is a question of how much their political exploiters are taking. What is the proper method for handling relief? It is not a simple problem. But it is a problem which can—and must—be solved. Surely the courage and common sense that has built America will not surrender before th. challenge of this task.

As I have said, the first thing is to get rid of waste, extravagance and politics in the administration of relief. We have a commonsense, workable solution. It must be declared for those who want a job but cannot get one; not for those who would not take a job at any price.

We must have a program that will take care of all who are genuinely in need, not one designed for political henchmen and ward-heelers.

The first step in building an intelligent system for handling relief is to find out the facts. That the Republican party proposes to do.

Monsignor Keegan, head of the Catholic charities of the archdiocese of New York, recently said:

"We believe the administration of the work program and of relief can, in the main, be carried out most effectively through local and state direction."

That is sound advice. The Republican party as a major reform proposes to return the administration of relief to the states. It will then be possible for the communities themselves to determine just what form the relief should take. They will determine what if any work relief projects will be started or continued.

Local agencies are familiar with the real needs of their citizens. A centralized agency in Washington never can be. Wise administration of relief depends upon human contact. Relief cases cannot, and must not, be handled as so many marks on a bureaucratic chart.

At the same time the Federal government must continue to give financial aid, through the State We intend to organize a system of Federal grants-in-aid to the States. We shall ask that the States qualify by complying with certain reasonable conditions.

The first of these conditions is that a fair proportion of the total relief burden shall be contributed by the State and local governments. A direct financial responsibility is the best guarantee we can have that the taxpayers' money will not be squandered. Relief officials will be held in strict accountability.

The second is that all who are engaged in the administration of relief must be selected on a basis of merit and fitness. To put men and women in charge of relief solely because they are politically deserving is contemptible.

The third condition is that encouragement be given to those who are trying to become self-supporting. This is of primary importance. Today there is little incentive for a man on relief to take a private job.

Jobs On Merit

If I am elected we will provide an efficient employment service. That means a service which will bridge the gap between the relief rolls and a reviving industry willing to play its part in the movement for recovery.

The Republican party proposes further that Federal public works shall be undertaken only on their merits and shall not be confused with the administration of relief. I am opposed to the use of relief labor, at relief wages, for the construction of Federal public works.

This in broad outline is the Republican position on relief. So long as the need for relief exists, the necessary funds must be provided. And we must bear in mind not only the physical well being of our less fortunate neighbors, but their spirit, their courage and their faith as well.

It is inconceivable that one-sixth of our fellow citizens should continue to be deprived of those opportunities for growth and development, which are the inalienable rights of free men in a free land.

Fear Gospel Scored by President

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Wichita, Kans., Oct. 13—President Roosevelt came into the home state of his Republican opponent today and launched the most militant attack he has yet made against the Republican leadership in this campaign, which he accused of trying to spread the gospel of fear among the people.

But the people, he predicted, will on the third of November "refuse to be frightened by fairy tales."

"I know," he said, "that the people of this country have not short memories. They remember only too well the real fear—the justified fear—that all over the nation in 1933, to be frightened by this silly false fear which is now being preached.

"The leaders who are trying to do it are the very ones whose blindness to facts and refusal to act caused the real fear and the real danger of national disaster in 1932."

CITES U. S. AID

Mr. Roosevelt did not even mention the name of Governor Landon here in his home state. Nor did he wish to discuss, he said, the local affairs of the State of Kansas. Kansas hardly could have come through the depression so well except for federal assistance.

Speculators, he charged, brought on the country's economic collapse and "vast speculative gains were made by the few without regard to the deep injuries they were causing to the great masses of our people."

"In the spring of 1933," he declared, "the same speculators pleaded with me for help—help of any kind—just so long as it would save them from bankruptcy. Most people thought they had learned their lesson. We hoped they would join with our average citizens in working for some kind of security against a recurrence of these panic years.

"Yet here they are—three years later—giving a vague lip service to that word 'security' and, at the same time, seeking to block, to thwart and to annul every measure that we have taken to restrain the kind of individualism which hurts the community itself —individualism ran amuck."

The philosophy of the New Deal, he said, has been to provide security in its broadest sense for the average citizen — security against losing homes, against going hungry, and against becoming objects of charity plus a full opportunity for the government-assisted private enterprise, and the right to carry on representative government.

On the other hand, he asserted, there has been a school of thought that considered that the millions who did not get to the top of the economic ladder did not deserve security.

EXPLAINS DEBT

"That school of thought left Washington on March 4, 1933," he declared.

To the frequently reiterated Republican charge that the administration has promoted class feeling and class warfare, Mr. Roosevelt replied:

"The people who talk about class distinctions are the very ones who are encouraging class antagonism. For they tell one story in the East and another story in the West; one story in the city and another story on the farm. That is not my way and never will be my way."

In an explanatory defense of New Deal fiscal policy, the President declared that although the public debt is higher than ever before, actually it is less than at the end of the Hoover administration when measured in the country's capacity to pay it.

DEAL WORRIED OVER PRIEST'S VISIT HERE

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Under the impetus of the publicity declared support given by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin at the huge National Union for Social Justice meeting in National League Field, the Union Party candidacy of former District-Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien for Vice-President and United States senator today assumed formidable proportions in the November 3 election.

The great outpouring of followers of the Detroit radio priest was a severe blow to New Dealers' claim that the Social Justice movement had fallen off in Massachusetts.

Intensity of the opposition of the big gathering to the Roosevelt administration stunned the Democratic observers.

To the hundreds of thousands of members of the National Union for Social Justice, President Roosevelt's retention of the circle of advisers made up of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Secretary Hopkins, Professor Frankfurter, Tugwell and others of like philosophy, appeared to be an effective answer to his protestations against the charge of Communist support.

RULERS TO DUBINSKY

The Rev. Coughlin received deafening cheers when he again linked up the national administration with the Reds and held that the President has "Communistic tendencies."

He pointed to the recent Tremont Temple rally of the needle workers, where David Dubinsky, Socialist, and Roosevelt elector in New York, made a fervid plea for the re-election of the President

That Governor Curley, in trying to induce him to withdraw O'Brien from the senatorial contest, admitted that O'Brien's staying in might bring about his (Curley's) defeat, was revealed by the radio priest.

This disclosure came in an interview after the priest's public appearance at the baseball field. The Rev. Coughlin told of the telephone conversations between himself at Royal Oak, Michigan, and Governor Curley in Boston.

He said he told the governor that it was "too bad," but that O'Brien would not get out unless the governor endorsed 16 Social Justice principles, repudiated Roosevelt, and ceased campaigning for the President in New England.

Governor Curley, he continued, replied that he would have to remain loyal to the party.

NOT TO MEET CARDINAL

The priest also declared he would leave late this afternoon for Detroit. They expected no meeting between him and Cardinal Pacelli, the Papal secretary of state.

WIFE BEATEN, HUNT HUSBAND

A Dorchester woman was beaten and critically injured by her husband today, according to police, who sent out a radio alarm for his arrest.

The injured woman, Mrs. Madeline Plasson, 42, of Savin Hill avenue, was taken to City Hospital, where her name was placed on the danger list.

Her skull was fractured, right wrist was bruised, and may also be broken, and she had other injuries.

Her husband is Victor Plasson, 42, who has previously served a year in the House of Correction for striking her, the police said.

Mrs. Plasson, according to neighbors, from the house, screaming for help, and police, after investigating, said she had been struck on the head with a piece of cordwood.

Plasson was described as five feet six inches, 138 pounds and wearing a gray soft hat and brown suede jacket.

What Landon Stands For: Lower Taxes

GOVERNOR LANDON regards the TAXING POWER of the government as a constant THREAT against the SECURITY OF THE PEOPLE.

He knows taxes are necessary for the support of essential government agencies, and that GOOD CITIZENS willingly pay for GOOD GOVERNMENT.

But he realizes that every dollar a citizen PAYS IN TAXES is a dollar taken OUT OF HIS WAGES.

The money the housewife pays in taxes CANNOT BUY BREAD FOR HER FAMILY.

The taxes paid by the farmer REDUCE his PURCHASING POWER.

Taxes paid by employers NEVER REACH PAYROLLS.

Governor Landon believes, therefore, that the BEST government is the one that puts the LEAST tax load on its people.

He knows all WASTE in government is translated to the people in terms of NEEDLESS TAXES.

He considers it a SACRED TRUST upon government to husband the people's money, to SPEND WISELY and to SPEND HONESTLY.

Governor Landon believes, above all, that a government that MAKES TAXATION A BURDEN is a government that has BETRAYED ITS TRUST.

Who Killed Merry Widow?

ARE LEGS ENOUGH TO PROVE CRIME?

A BAFFLING MYSTERY

Offensive as it may be in detail to the aesthetic senses, the current mystery of apparent murder is the most interesting in Massachusetts in years and, since the Dr. Speer case, the most baffling.

Unless missing parts of the body are recovered, or confession comes from an unexpected source, it may never be solved.

The police have the dismembered legs of a woman, picked up in the harbor a week ago today, they have a blood-spattered Weymouth cottage whose tenant, a woman, has vanished. These are linked by circumstantial evidence and conjecture in a theory of murder—perhaps double murder.

But there is no conclusive evidence of murder having been committed and no positive identification of the dismembered legs as those of Mrs. Grayce Griffin Asquith.

Mystery Angles

The authorities have established to their own satisfaction that murder was done and that Mrs. Asquith was the victim, but, in the present development of the case, they have grave doubts of being able to establish either point in a court of law.

There is no condition of the legs that proves beyond question their ownership was a victim of homicide.

There is no condition of the legs proving beyond question their ownership was Mrs. Asquith although a footprint in the sticky clay near by resembles the wedge cast of the sole of one foot of the victim.

Nor do these parts constitute all of Mrs. Asquith's cottage that proves beyond doubt a murder was committed there, more than a fact admitted in stages of decomposition to be fleshly.

There are believed to be Mrs. Asquith's legs because: (1) they were found somewhat more than the size worn by Mrs. Asquith; (2) the medical examiner's description of the legs tallies in detail with that submitted from the legs, turned out to approximate Mrs. Asquith; (3) a portion of the Boston Post wrapper was found in Mrs. Asquith's cottage and the section missing matches with a corresponding piece on one leg; (4) Mrs. Asquith vanished about the time that the owners of the legs met violent death; (5) she threatened in the past; (6) one of Mrs. Asquith's dresses contained an article dated as of a point where a tiny callous was found on the corresponding foot of the dismemberment victim; (8) the footprint, not clear, appears to match.

This is a chain of circumstantial evidence strongly linking Mrs. Asquith's disappearance to the hacked limbs, but there is no indisputable link of identification or murder in it.

The fact that the legs were found floating within a few hours and a few hundred yards of each other would indicate that they had entered the harbor at the same spot and had been subject to the same conditions of tide and current.

It would also appear to indicate that they were placed in the harbor in the same general area in which they were found and had come to the surface only a short time before being found (became otherwise they would have been found before). But this does not necessarily hold, because the abundance of burlap bags and other "mess" noted picked up shows that victims' traffic ordinarily pays little attention to flotsam and the legs may have been drifting around for several days.

Why Delay?

Mrs. Asquith appears to have dropped from sight on the evening of September 19, yet no inquiries concerning her whereabouts were made, or reached police, until October 7, two days after the legs were found.

This is somewhat peculiar in itself, because she received mail calls almost daily, but it may be explained by the fact police had already given some attention to what was going on at the bungalow and there would be a natural hesitancy on the part of any friend noting her absence to again direct attention of the authorities to the place.

The legs were found October 5, one off the airport, one off Governor's Island, both sufficiently advanced in stages of decomposition to be fleshly.

One was wrapped in a section of a Sunday newspaper of July 12 and sewed with twine into a burlap potato sack. The other was wrapped in a section of green window shade and sewed into a burlap "rice" container used by wholesale distributors to transport meat to shipyards.

Cool Killer

For a week, however, nothing in the harbor that looked like a clew had gone without inspection. Boatsmen and the fishing fleet and crews of commercial craft have aided police in the search—and the missing head, arms and torso have not been found.

As the tissue would decompose faster than the legs and more readily relate to the surface, it is a logical conclusion that if it were disposed of at the same place the legs were tossed into the harbor, it was weighted down.

Nor does it necessarily hold that unless the torso and other missing parts were hidden near the scene of the crime they were disposed of at the same time and place as the legs.

The nature of the supposed crime indicates that after its commission the killer set methodically and coldbloodedly about erasing all times of a crime and did not panic in a panic; may even have returned to the scene after disposing of the body. Whether panic later assailed him is another matter.

Nearest harbor point to Mrs. Asquith's bungalow is the Weymouth shore. Hull and Hingham are also close by. Yet it appears extremely unlikely that if the legs had entered the harbor at either one of those places they would have floated where they were found.

(This discussion of the dismemberment case will be continued while the case remains without solution.)

What Police Ask

WIDOW'S ADMIRER HELD IN $50,000 BAIL

Hearing on the charge against Bartolini was continued until November 10.

HIGH BAIL PLEA

Requesting the unusually high bail, Assistant District Attorney George A Schofield told Judge James A Mulhall:

"The defendant has not been arrested. The evidence tends to show conclusively that this witness was one of the last, if not the last, to see Mrs. Grayce Asquith alive.

"He has no property or interests in this city and has nothing to prevent his leaving for parts unknown. Coupled with his economy, which we consider an important, I ask that bail of $50,000 be set for a hearing on November 10."

Not handcuffed, but represented by counsel, Bartolini sat in the prisoner's dock with the collar of his brown sport coat turned up about his unshaven chin and buttoned across in front so it was impossible to tell whether he wore a shirt. His eyes were red-rimmed.

He had been in voluntary custody since last Wednesday night, when the disappearance of Mrs. Asquith from her bungalow on the shore of Whitman pond was first coupled with the finding, two days before, of a woman's dismembered legs in Boston Harbor.

FREQUENT VISITOR

He has told police, they say, that he was a frequent visitor at the bungalow and that on the night the widow there at 6:30 on the night of September 19, when she is said known to have left with one another admirer, John A. Lyons, Bank Boy war veteran, who has also vanished.

New clues directed the search for the head, torso and arms of the victim, and for Lyons, dead or alive—as Bartolini was officially placed under arrest.

Whitman pond, a West Quincy quarry hole and dump, and the waters off L street bridge, South Boston, were explored for the missing parts of the body.

State Detectives Edward O'Neil and Sergeant Joseph Fallon of the Boston police went to Connecticut seeking Lyons.

'LYONS' REPORTED SEEN

Another clue to Lyons' possible whereabouts was a report made by Sergeant Henry Bailey, of the South End division, that a man believed to be Lyons, accompanied by a blonde woman, had been seen riding about the Sout hEnd in a maroon car bearing new New York plate and one of cardboard.

Cruising cars were directed by Toole to watch for this car. Police would not discuss the vague possibility that, if it is Lyons, it may be Mrs. Asquith with him.

Ralph Wallace skiff operator, continued his search of Whitman pond, but transferred his efforts from the shore line of the dump to Brown's bungalow to a point near where a bridge carries Route 3. The boats have been over a small section of the pond.

The search was directed to this point by the finding of what appeared to be a blood spot and a small piece of flesh on the bridge railing.

Theodore L. Meserve, 40, of Lincoln road, street lieutenant, a tobacco salesman, told police that on the night of September 23 he saw a cabin cruiser in a peculiar position in the boat basin off Moon Island in Boston harbor and approached to within 10 feet of the craft.

"3 SUITCASES"

The cruiser, he said, were two men and two bundles wrapped in burlap. He thought the bundles were suitcases.

One of the men, he said, resembled a friend of Mrs. Asquith.

The man hailed him and when he approached, he said, but later he saw it again and did not see the bundles aboard.

For possible use in the harbor search, police loaded an underwater camera, loaned to them by an Arthur Gagnon, of Manchester, N. H.

Another Lyons clue was given police by George D. Shaw, 30, of Front street, Cambridge, who said he noticed a man who gave the name of Ryan from Tegus to Freeport, Me., a week ago today, might have been the mysterious visitor of the widow.

This man, he said, told him he was driving "around Boston" and not leaving the city and vanished with $5 and a tapestral belonging to Shaw when the latter left the car in Freeport to visit a store.

QUINCY DUMP SEARCHED

The Quincy dump, casually inspected by state detectives, yesterday was the scene of an intensive search by Sergeant Fred Young and a half-dozen highway department workers today. It is filled with land and buildings where a certain three potato sacks, a stained auto seat and two cars were seized for inspection yesterday.

SAW 2 MEN, BURLAP BAG

An information given by a woman resident of Whitman, Ralph Wallace will also search a quarry in Randolph that district that was run by Mrs. Asquith's head, arms and torso.

Possibly locked also in the car, in their opinion, may be the body of a second murder victim, killed at the same time as was the pleasure loving Weymouth cottage tenant.

According to the story told police by this blond Quincy woman witness, she was awakened in the night by the sound of an auto being driven at high speed over the ridge of a quarry hole near her home.

HEARS SPLASH

She listened, fearing some passing car, missing the road in the darkness, was in danger of toppling into the treacherous pit. Then the mysterious engine raced again—and she heard a heavy splash.

Alarmed, the woman ran as close as she dared to the quarry edge, but could see no trace of a machine. In the darkness, she could not attempt to detect its number.

She decided she must have been mistaken in dreaming and returned to her home. This was approximately three weeks ago a day or two after the supposed time of the "Merry Widow" murder.

Later she reviewed her impressions and became more and more convinced that the sounds she heard were not imaginary. She also thought she detected signs of engine oil on the surface of the quarry pool.

After listening to her story, police recalled today that it was in a West Quincy quarry hole that gangsters almost succeeded in concealing forever an auto containing the body of "Ted" Curran, alleged by slain fest he turn state's witness against underworld associates.

Fred Wallace, Ralph's brother, explored the harbor bottom of L Street bridge, where a man was reported seen dropping bundles in the water.

The submerged auto theory developed hypothetically today with evidence in police possession indicating that Mrs. Asquith's or Mrs. Asquith's garage of a car not yet identified by investigation.

The car, police believe, was not either of the two green machines which have been impounded for inspection.

A third automobile, not yet located, figured in stories told police by Gerald Dewire of Weymouth and by Louis Frati, Weymouth taxi driver.

Dewire, he said, was asked the way to Houghs Neck by two men in a closed car which had a suspicious looking bundle on its back seat. This was on Sept. 20, the day after the supposed murder date.

According to Taximan Pratt, he brought to the murder cottage, on Sept 21, a man whom he picked up at the Weymouth depot.

CARS MISSING

His fare spoke of having had a "hangover" and having left his own machine at the house later established to be that of Mrs. Asquith.

Neither the man who waited to find Houghs Neck nor the man with the "hangover" have ever come forward. Nor has the car with the suspicious bundle or the car "left" at Mrs. Asquith's cottage been located.

Police and postoffice inspectors have learned that Mrs. Asquith had a private mailbox at the Weymouth postoffice. A known admirer of hers used to call for her mail there daily, but did not go there after the day of the murder. An accumulation of mail was found.

Relatives of the missing Lyons were united today in their opinion that he must either be dead or held a prisoner by the murderer or murderers.

Of special legal significance was District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing's assertion today that he does not need missing parts of Mrs. Asquith's body to establish the fact of a murder and convict the guilty person, if the latter is apprehended.

The district-attorney's statement followed announcement by police that Mrs. Asquith's footprint, found in the bathroom of her cottage, had been closely matched with footprints taken from the legs found in the harbor.

Matching sole prints, he said, positively prove the remains recovered from the harbor to be those of the missing "Merry Widow" of Weymouth.

"We've already established corpus delicti," the district attorney asserted. "There'll be no loophole there for the murderer when we bring him to trial."

BUT MAKES SHIP IN WORLD RACE

Closing the gap between herself and the leader in this round-the-world canter, Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, International News Service reporter, is aboard the President Pierce, which will take her to Manila and the China Clipper.

Ahead of her is H. R. Ekins, New York reporter, held by storms in Manila. On the Pierce also is Leo Kieran, third member of the round-the-world globe-trotting trio.

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

(Copyright, 1936, by International News Service, Boston Evening American and New York Evening Journal.)

Hongkong, Oct. 13—Lost over the edge of the Indo-Chinese jungle I. Forced to land, alone but for a Siamese pilot, among half-naked natives . . . and then making, by a margin of minutes, the Manila steamer!

That's the log my wobbly hand is scrawling as the gangplank of the Dollar liner President Pierce is being lifted and I can sit back after the most terrifying, dizzy, breathless day of adventure on this scramble around the world.

It all started at Hanoi, where we stopped overnight on the way from Bangkok. Winds delayed our takeoff until 5:30 a. m.

The little silver two-seater piloted by Nai Luen Bhumsobana, who learned how to fly in S. Louis, headed northeast into the quarter of the wind—"crabbing," as the fliers say—but got crabbing nearly so much as I.

Loses Way

Talping in Kwangsi province of southern China, where rebellious provincial army leaders are still threatening to rise in civil war against the national Chinese government, was our first objective.

Down found us sailing serenely southward . . . over French Indo-Chinese jungles, where tigers and great constrictor snakes lie in wait.

But when the semi-tropical sun rose high in the heavens, the Siamese pilot began to show signs of worry. He looked first over one shoulder, then the other, then down. No Talping!

For an hour and a half he looked, circling and scrutinizing, losing valuable minutes, while I thought of the President Pierce ready to sail from Hongkong.

Finally the pilot shrugged his shoulders in Oriental despair, and headed for a landing . . . while my thoughts of bandits, kidnapers, murders, and revolutions sizzled in my head.

We thumped down jarringly in the middle of a rice field. The plane was not damaged—but in a second I thought all my worse fears about Kwangsi province were realized.

Swarming like gnomes from the ground, about 600 chattering natives, nearly naked, surrounded us. They swept in for a closer look, and could not understand Siamese.

Dash for Ship

We finally made them understand that we were lost and were finally directed to Fort Bayard.

So after a takeoff that I thought would be my last, we came to rest at Fort Bayard, an English settlement on the edge of the China Sea.

Here I learned that Hongkong was right—but we were two hours late. We landed at the Royal Air Force Field at Kai-tak, Hongkong, at 8:45 p. m. (5:45 a. m. E. S. T.).

I said good-bye to my Siamese pilot and scrambled off on the shortest and wildest leg of this wild dash across Hongkong to the President Pierce.

Leo Kieran is also aboard the President Pierce. He came up an hour ahead of me in the first section of the two-plane aerial train from Bangkok.

Now, if the same winds that delayed the China Clipper hold H. R. Ekins in Manila there'll be new life in this race.

The State Prison terms were meted out by Judge David F. Dillon in superior criminal court after reading of the sealed verdicts. The charges on which Holmes was convicted were assault with intent to rob and murder, attempted robbery and carrying a revolver.

Motion for anew trial, made by Attorney William F. Brophy, was denied by Judge Dillon.

ATTACK VICTIM DROWNS SELF

Brand, after a cursory examination of the body, pronounced death by drowning. After a later examination he called the case one of suicide.

The tragic remains of the woman who was a laundry worker and who went home every night—except the night of June 1—were identified today by her daughter, Mrs. Florence Atwood.

BROODED ALL TIME

Even that took time. There was nothing in Mrs. O'Connor's pocketbook to say she was. Only an inexpensive rosary.

But Mrs. Atwood, the daughter, had said "good-night" to her mother at 7 o'clock this morning. And as 8 o'clock mother wasn't at home, Nan was she at work in that Cambridge laundry.

The daughter went to police to tell her story and police told her their story—how they had found a body in Flax Pond. That was all.

"She was broken-hearted," the daughter said. "She had never a moment's peace since that night. She brooded all the time. Maybe that was it."

"GET THOSE 4 MEN!"

Chief of Police James H. Broad of Lynn called in his police officers and he told them:

"Mr. Cummings heard screams and called us today. Then Mrs. O'Connor's body was found.

Who Keeps Them Idle, Industry or Roosevelt?

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in an editorial which discusses official government reports of the AAAA effect on employment, says:

"What happened in the South was that the AAA program was dominated by planters and landlords, who in many cases grabbed th benefits that should have gone to share-croppers and tenants. Nearly a million of the latter were dispossessed and left without a means of livelihood."

The year in five cotton states Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, Louisiana and South Carolina, 400,000 persons are on the Federal Work Relief rolls.

Roosevelt's AAA put them there.

Roosevelt's WPA compels the sharecroppers of the South to provide the hundreds of millions of dollars he is pouring into these states, presumably for these 400,000 jobless.

The planters and landowners of the South refuse to contribute their just share for the relief of their own citizens. Roosevelt let them get away with this and shifts the cost to the wage-earners in the North.

G.O.P., Democrats Speed Up Battle

'Dealer' Quits, Aids Haigis

By L. CONANT, JR.

In ever increasing numbers old-line Massachusetts Democrats are deserting the New Deal banner to support the cause of John W. Haigis, Republican nominee for Governor.

Latest endorsement came today from Bernard F. Ryan, former prominent Ward 10 Democrat.

Declaring his belief that "party principles depend upon the man chosen as party leader," Ryan asserted that "Charles F. Hurley cannot or will not follow the principles of the real Democratic party."

"I prefer Mr. Haigis," he said, "and his long record of liberal progressiveness to the so-called record of Mr. Hurley."

Tonight, as members of the state Republican ticket swing into their western tour of the state, a great welcome awaited the Republican gubernatorial nominee in his home town of Green field, where one of the three scheduled rallies will be held. The two others will take place in Easthampton and Northampton.

Judge Jacob Asher, of Worcester, who will introduce Haigis, pointed out today that this Republican nominee received 97 percent of the votes cast in the Republican primary in Greenfield.

"What better test of a man's character and sincerity," he asked, "can be rendered than the judgment of his neighbors and associates?"

In a radio address, Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., scored the campaign of the Democratic gubernatorial candidate as "truly the most expensive ever known in the history of Massachusetts."

"Where is the money coming from to finance your campaign?" was the challenge hurled against State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley by Parkman.

Scores Hurley

"The people have a right to know from what sources comes this money for your campaign," continued Parkman. "A campaign that competent and unbiased observers estimate will cost nearly a quarter of a million dollars before election day.

"The evidence of this gross and vulgar expenditure actually shrieks to the high heavens on every highway of the State."

Charging that Hurley has "evaded" the questions put to him by John W. Haigis, Parkman declared that Hurley is "either with Curley or he is against him."

"If he is with him and doesn't says so," he said, "he is working a fraud on the public.

"If he is not with him and doesn't say so he lacks courage. In either case he disqualifies himself from serving you as your governor."

City Fathers Take 5-Year 'Buggy Ride'

Complying with a law passed by the Legislature 295 years ago, a committee of city councillors and other officials today began their "perambulation" of the boundaries of Boston.

They compiled with the spirit, rather than the letter, of the law, however, for they did their perambulating in an automobile.

The committee consisted of Councillors Robert G. Wilson, Jr., and Edwin H. Tobin, both from Dorchester; Assistant City Clerk John P. Hynes and William J. Sullivan, chief engineer of the street laying out department.

They inspected the boundary stones along the Everett, Somerville and Revere boundaries and tomorrow will inspect those on the Dedham, Milton, Brookline and Newton lines. Originally the inspection had to be made every three years, but the law was amended many years ago and now requires the perambulation once in five years.

Baby Killed, Youth Dying in Crash

Springfield, Oct. 13.—A 20-months-old boy was killed, his mother and a man seriously injured here today in a head-on collision between a truck and a car at Shattuck and Maynard streets.

The child, Bruce Haatanen, of Carew street, died shortly after admittance at Wesson Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Thelma Haatanen, 20, was found suffering from a possible fractured skull.

Jerry Frasca, 19, of Taylor street, who, police said, was operator of the truck, was dying at the hospital from a fractured skull. His name was placed on the danger list.

Six Rescued in So. Boston Fire

Six persons, five of them children, were rescued by police today as a two-alarm fire broke out in a three-story dwelling house in I street, South Boston.

The blaze, which was caused by an overheated pipe, was confined to the third floor of the building in the apartment occupied by Mrs. Catherine N. White, owner of the building, and her five children.

Curley Seeks Lost Ground

By WILLIAM C. CONWAY

Governor James M. Curley today began a fight to regain the ground lost in his battle for election to the United States Senate as a result of the visit of Rev. Charles E. Coughlin to Boston.

Governor Curley made his strongest bid of the campaign thus far for votes of Social Justice adherents in a statement in which he called upon followers of Father Coughlin to "contrast the program enunciated by me as mayor of Boston 21 years ago with the program of the Social Justice group."

In recalling an address which he delivered in January, 1915, as Mayor of Boston, Governor Curley took a thrust at Father Coughlin when he said:

"I offered these suggestions 21 years ago, before the sole owner of social justice was heard of."

Governor Curley said that in the address delivered 21 years ago he had made public 11 points which covered every phase of social justice, with the exception of fiduciary slagnet."

"They are as sound today as when they were uttered 21 years ago," he said.

Asks Contrast

"I beg you to contrast the program as enunciated by me 21 years ago with the program of the social justice group just one year ago.

"In view of the unswerving position taken by me upon this question long before it was espoused by those who father it at the present hour, neither myself nor my friends can understand the reason for the failure of agencies interested in the adoption of the principles of social justice to support and indorse my candidacy in the present contest."

In his battle to offset the losses resulting from Father Coughlin's wholehearted indorsement of the senatorial candidacy of Thomas C. O'Brien, Governor Curley will lead the state ticket candidates out of Boston today for an invasion of cities and towns in central Massachusetts.

All candidates, with the exception of Dr. Joseph A. Santosuosso, who is recovering from an injury to his leg, will be aboard the bandwagon when it rolls out of Boston today for Whitinsville, Farnumsville, Uxbridge and Millbury.

The recently elected Democratic mayor, Charles Sullivan, whose election last week brightened the political horizon for the Democratic state ticket candidates, will share the platform tonight in the Worcester Auditorium.

HEALEY "BOMB" UPSETS UNION PARTY HERE

A political bombshell was tossed into the Union party today, following Father Coughlin's surprise endorsement of Congressman Arthur D. Healey of Somerville over Nelson F. Wright of Medford, whose candidacy is based solely on the Social Justice program of the Detroit priest.

Wright, a close friend of Thomas C. O'Brien, Union party candidate for Senator in Massachusetts, was expected to receive the endorsement of Father Coughlin by the thousands who stormed National League Field yesterday.

Questioned by reporters concerning his endorsement of Congressman Healey, long considered an ardent supporter of President Roosevelt, Father Coughlin admitted he did not know Wright had received the endorsement of the Union Party.

When he was further informed that Congressman Healey was not a member of the Union Party, Father Coughlin declared:

"We've done that before, endorsing Democrats and men of our own party. Congressman Healey is educated, honest, and one who has worked for the interests of social justice in Washington."

On Father Coughlin's platform at National League Field was the placard:

"Wright for Congress."

TEXTILE UNION TO ASK 20 P C. PAY INCREASE

Providence, Oct. 13 (AP)—A ten-hour-wage increase, a 40-hour week, and a return to the so-called work load that prevailed during the National Recovery Administration period will be demanded by the United Textile Workers of America, Thomas F. McMahon, international president of the union announced here today.

The demand, to be made by the union's executive council at a meeting in New York, before October 20, will be "executing instructions given at the recent international convention of the U. T. W.," Mr. Mahon said.

1500 Jamaica Plain Shoe Workers Strike

Threatening to paralyze the local shoe manufacturing trade, more than 1500 shoe workers were out on strike today following a deadlock between the United Shoe Workers' Union and the Jamaica Shoe Company of Jamaica Plain.

Trouble started last Thursday, when the shoe company refused to allow a closed shop for unions. At a meeting held in the Franklin Institute the same day, the Boston local of the union workers' union decided to give the Jamaica company five days grace to eliminate non-union workers from their shops.

Orders from union headquarters at 1190 Washington street, South End, today started workers on their exodus.

Paul Salvaggio, president of the local union, said that no workers in Lynn would be ordered out this afternoon, if the shoe company did not "change its attitude."

He Finds Lady Luck In Alaska

Homer, Alaska, Oct. 12 (AP)—Hope of fortune and a restlessness he couldn't quiet made Harrie Gordon quit the job he had held 19 years with a Venice, Calif., oil company and cast his lot with Alaska.

He received materials for a generating plant and waterwheel today and paused a moment to review his mouthful good fortune.

A coal mine in his backyard.

Gold in the front yard.

A natural waterfall on one side.

A fox farm on the other side.

Beyond his fox farm, a garden.

"I panned more than $100 in gold from the creek between foxfeeding periods last week," Gordon said. "I hope to do even better.

"We (his wife and three children) are going to install our own generating plant. We hardly have to dig for coal; it just sticks out of the hillside."

47 GIRLS FLEE MALDEN GAS; 4 STRICKEN

Forty-seven girls were affected by gas fumes, four of them seriously, today, in a building in Crozier street, Malden.

The most seriously affected were:

Miss Dorothy Reardon, 22, of 589 Broadway, Chelsea.

Mrs. Helen McGonagle, 723 Broadway, Chelsea.

Miss Irene Evans, 4 Loring avenue, Salem.

Mrs. Alice Foley, 74 Saratoga avenue, Chelsea.

GIRL GIVES ALARM

Loose gas connections in the radio equipment plant of the Boudette Co., Inc., where new machines had just been installed, were blamed.

Miss Reardon staggered from the factory and collapsed on a truck-loading platform just as two Everett patrolmen, Anthony Fiorentino and J. J. O'Donnell, were passing.

The two officers ran into the building and found 30 girls ill in the Boudette plant on the first floor and 17 others affected in the factory of the Spirit-Company upstairs. All were ordered out.

POLICE, DOCTOR CALLED

Help was called from Malden police headquarters, which is nearby, and Dr. Daniel T. Driscoll revived Miss Reardon.

After treatment the four most seriously affected by the fumes were sent home.

The others were ordered to remain outside until the place was aired. The fixtures were tightened by a crew from the gas company.

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Santa Olalla, Spain Oct. 13 (INS)—They told us to drive very fast over the stretch of road the Reds were shelling, so we put on speed and our little cinnamon bear of a Burgos chauffeur crouched over the wheel with his flop ears standing straight out.

WE thought they had told us to turn left at the next pair of farmhouses; but when we did, one legionnaire came to the door and we could see behind him a whole troop of them crouching on the floor, and they yelled at us to "get the Hell out of here, you're attracting the enemy fire."

So there we were, had to turn around, and it seemed as though it took ages and then we drove across the road to the opposite farmhouse, where four automobiles and trucks were smashed together in the courtyard by shells so badly that you couldn't tell where one began and the other left off.

The second we pulled up, Colonel Delgado came out as fast as a colonel can come without losing dignity and in language more polite but no less emphatic than the legionnaire's told us to get away quickly.

Drive to France

Not that anybody cared particularly for our hides, but our car made just the sort of attractive movement that artillery officers coming through 12-power binoculars need to direct their fire.

We got out and that night we drove all the way to France, taking eleven and a half hours of uninterrupted travel, filed our stories, turned around and now we are here again, for in the meanwhile the front had moved up. I suppose all the wrecked, plundered, looted and sacked towns I have seen in this war, Santa Olalla is the worst up to date, barring of course from which was not just wrecked but utterly destroyed and burned.

For a few days in a town like the which has been militarily occupied by its inhabitants no property has any owner, and anybody can have what he wants to pick up. Soldiers wander around disconsolately picking at the piles of junk, every now and then picking up a clock, looking at it, then dropping it. Others stroll through the deserted houses, seldom getting anything worthwhile because the Reds had the first choice and left mighty little.

Towns Deserted

In the main square every corner was jammed with garbage and we had no choice but to move inside a dead shop. Then our little cinnamon bear chauffeur heard an air raid coming and while we were hunting cover he moved his car into an alley with just enough space in front for two Asturian mine-pillar trucks used for hauling big guns. The smell was terrible and when we went to the car for water we found we had parked right over a pile of dead rhinoceros and a dead rabbit.

We tried to get the chauffeur to move but no authority we commanded could persuade him to get his car out of that filthy hole which he pointed out with justice was well protected from air bombs. So we went out on the square and watched a whole battalion of the Legion come back from the front in trucks sweating, haggard, singing, shouting and cursing.

Slipping along the garbage I jumped into a lieutenant of the Legion who said "sorry" he could not to be Michael Fitzpatrick, of the Irish Guards, and the companion was also a young Irishman, Lieutenant William Nangle of County Kerry.

They had both joined up with the Legion the moment the civil war became clearly outlined as a fight between Whites and Reds. Both were fanatical anti-reds; both although in their early thirties, had lots of military experience. Fitzpatrick admitted that was not his real name, because as a reserve officer of the Irish Guards he might get into difficulties for joining a foreign army.

Nangle didn't care. He had been in four different armies, the British, the Indian, the French foreign Legion and now the Spanish Foreign Legion.

Rebel Armies' Ring Clamped Tighter Round Madrid

Madrid, Oct. 13 (INS)—Loyalists holding El Escorial, traditional burial place of Spain's kings and important defensive post, could see puffs of rebel artillery smoke only a few miles off. The insurgents are now believed to be making El Escorial the next objective of their Madrid drive.

For the entire length of the irregular semi-circular front around the capital there was a series of battles today, sentering beyond El Escorial on the northwest, San Martin De Valdeiglesias on the west and Castiliejos on the east.

Red Air Bombers Raid Moorish Rebel Cavalry

With the insurgent forces on the Avila front, near San Martin de Valdeiglesias, Spain, Oct. 13 (AP)—Government planes rained a heavy bombardment of steel on Insurgent troops today in an attempt to halt the Fascist advance on Madrid.

Three ships dropped more than 50 bombs on concentrations of Moorish cavalry outside the walls of San Martin.

Many cavalrymen—mounted on mules—huddled sidewise across the animals and threw blankets over themselves for protection. Some carried with night wounds, when mules were shot from under them.

SPAIN WARS ON 'ANARCHY,' SAYS FORMER OFFICER

REDS SPREAD UNREST AMONG WORKERS

BY A FORMER SPANISH OFFICIAL WHO IS NOW IN SPAIN

Were his identity revealed, the members of his immediate family and all of their relatives would probably be assassinated.

People, outside the popular front sympathizers, were far from confident after the elections of February 16th, that any constructive program for the good of the country would emerge from such a union of parties with conflicting programs and aims.

This conflict of aims made friendship by no means good between Socialists and Communists on one hand, and Syndicalists and Anarchists on the other, and even among the different shades of Socialists.

The Socialist leader, Indalecio Prieto, now minister of the navy, was bodily assaulted by Socialists of the Largo Caballero faction at a meeting in Cordoba, because he asked the government to use patience in order to develop a constructive policy.

The newspapers, El Socialista of Prieto and Claridad of Largo Caballero, violently attacked one another.

It was realized that what the popular front government really intended, was to set up a government of the left factions on a permanent basis.

DISCONTENT RIFE

The popular front government policy was against the religious sentiments of the population, for Spain was and still is one of the strongholds of Christianity and one of the countries where a deep-rooted religious turn of mind is most visible in our days.

Spanish patriotism was shaken when uttering the traditional "Long Live Spain" was severely punished, while "Long Live Red Russia, 'Long Live Spain' were admitted and even encouraged.

There was discontent among the producing classes, agricultural and industrial, who could not stand the financial strain caused by strikes and the growing demands of the Socialist and Communist parties.

There was discontent among the working class against the tyrannical policy of Socialists and Communists who were forcing employers to bar all workers who did not belong to their party.

PERSECUTION INCREASED

A growing opposition to the government was gradually building itself up from all social classes, on religious, political and economic grounds.

It was an unorganized opposition, due to the short time in which events were taking place, and to the strict press censorship, prohibition of speeches and meetings, and wholesale arrests of non-sympathizers, etc. but, in spite of it all, there were clear indications that this opposition would not easily be subdued.

In Parliament, two leaders were conspicuous by their representations to the government: Gil Robles and Calvo Sotelo.

The constructive criticism of the latter was a continual source of fear for the government, as he was the most experienced and the best prepared of the members of Parliament, in social and public finance matters, having held the office of minister of finance during the dictatorship of Prime De Rivera.

There was in June some distant hope that their warning speeches would convince the republican government of the danger of letting the extremists go out of hand, especially after LARGO CABALLERO, HEAD OF THE SOCIALIST YOUTH ASSOCIATION HAD DECLARED THAT THE PROLETARIAN DICTATORSHIP WAS THEIR IMMEDIATE AIM.

Advice went unheeded, violence and persecution increased, confidence in salvation through constitutional channels became more and more illusory.

SOTELO DEATH LEARNED

It was known that the government intended to modify parliament regulations so that it would meet only occasionally, thus freeing the executive from the legislative control.

In this tense atmosphere, leader Calvo Sotelo was assassinated on the 13th of July by uniformed troops of the shock police who removed him forcibly from his home at the early hours of the day, and shot him later.

The government hushed the matter as best they could, but instead of persecuting the murderers, there followed the arrest of hundreds of "Fascists," the popular front applying indiscriminately this term, to all opponents, regardless of the political ideas.

Five days later, on July 18, the Nationalist movement broke out, heartily welcomed by all citizens who had been so tyrannically oppressed by the popular front.

Had the movement begun some days later, most of the army officers would have been dismissed and all political leaders of the opposition either murdered or imprisoned.

Besides the Socialists and Communists had a revolution of their own in store, which was scheduled to take place first on the 11th of May, then postponed for the 29th of June, and finally set for the 31st of July.

Plans of the revolt were carefully laid down for the capture of the most strategical points in each town, and there was also a "black list" of citizens to be shot.

Also the names of the persons scheduled to form the central and local Soviet, and it is significant that a number of the people's commissars hold now portfolios in the present government.

This is the origin of the civil war. It is easy to envisage, in view of the historical background of the strife just described, what would happen if the Madrid government succeeds in overpowering the movement of the 18th of July.

Some thought there was no danger of Communism as long as the Republican cabinet existing at the beginning of the civil war remained in power, but this did not last long, and early in September a Socialist-Communist cabinet took its place.

Premier Largo Caballero is committed by his own previous speeches and activities to the establishment of a proletarian dictatorship along the lines of Soviet Russia.

CHURCHES SEIZED

There is nobody on the Madrid side who can stop him from doing so. He has thoroughly worked out the remains of the opposition by "purging" the state machinery and by keeping active the people's court and the firing squads of militiamen.

On the other hand it is now the Red militia which is the only disciplined and well-trained force in the territory controlled by the Socialist-Communist government.

Every day we read in the papers how Spain is being rapidly "Sovietised," how all churches have been seized for non-religious purposes, and how industries, Spanish and foreign, have been put under state control.

Only another course of events may be foreseen: The Anarchist-Syndicalist group take the upper hand after the victory.

This group is in Catalonia far stronger than the Socialist-Communist group, and something similar happens in some other provinces of Spain, though in lesser extent.

The stronghold of the Socialist party is Madrid, but it has been witnessed during the months of June and July, on the occasion of the buildings' strike how a minority can prevail upon a larger number of not so determined individuals.

DEATH HUNTED PEOPLE

It would not be too risky to predict that even under Largo Caballero Communism in Spain along the lines of Soviet Russia would be short-lived, and that an Anarchist experiment would soon take its place.

If the provisional government of General Cabanellas wins, things will be very different.

There is no parallel with what happened in Germany and Italy, where the Nazi and Fascist parties were organized to fight Communism, and succeeded in getting power, and in carrying out a program laid down in advance.

There is no doubt that this would have eventually happened in Spain, in spite of the obstacles put by the government, but the murder of Calvo Sotelo placed the Spaniards on the same situation as that of a man whose house suddenly takes fire.

He has to run for safety without thinking at the time how he is going to build a new one.

The movement is not a mere military revolt, for it is not only the army, but all citizens oppressed by the popular front who are fighting against the so-called government.

It is still less a Fascist movement, as all shades of political thought are represented.

Neither is it a Monarchist attempt at restoration, since there are many Republicans who have joined the war on the side of the so called insurgents.

We do not find anything better, anything more appropriate than to call it a christian-national movement.

While confiscation of property and "Sovietization" of industry goes on on the Madrid side, the economical system is working smoothly under the Burgos rule.

We can say with Professor Unamuno, who in 1930 was one of the most active propagandists of the Republican regime, and is now on the side of the Christian-national movement, that this is a war of "civilization against anarchy."

Civilization Fight

The facts leading up to the present amazing situation in Spain are of particular interest to the United States.

Specifically they show what happens to a country once it falls into the clutches of Reds.

Elected as the "champion" of Spanish democracy, Largo Caballero and his Socialist party quickly threw off the mask and established a "popular front" government.

Dominated by Communists and anarchists they suppressed all opposition, deposed the moderate president, Alcala Zamora, and elected the Radical Azana in his stead.

They began a reign of terror in which hundreds of churches have been burned, thousands of citizens assassinated and the country looted with the avowed purpose of establishing a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

It was then that the army revolted and civil war began.

What has this to do with us?

Only this: the same situation might well develop here should the same elements, that are now being directed by Moscow in the United States, as in Spain and France, be permitted to get the upper hand.

Charley Grapewin Lauds Boston as "Appreciative"

This is the 10th of a series of informale articles in which Peggy Doyle, Boston Evening American staff writer, interviews film notables in their Hollywood homes. Today's star is Charley Grapewin.

By PEGGY DOYLE

Hollywood, Oct. 13.—Three times a year Charley Grapewin and Anna Chance used to come to Keith's Boston, each time packing the house, and they used to say, the two duetted reminiscently today, that "we were responsible for their new $1,000,000 theater."

That was years ago, but the memory of those days—of the beauty of the Public Garden on a sun-drenched spring day, of walking up Tremont street on a marrow-shilling winter day, of the heart-warming responsiveness of Boston's audiences, "the world's most appreciative"—these are as vivid for the Grapewins today as they were then.

Charley Grapewin, whom you'll be seeing soon as the rather wimpsical, genial old father of Paul Muni in "The Good Earth," lives in a California bungalow of white stucco with a red-tiled roof with his wife and one-time stage and vaudeville partner, Anna Chance.

Old Friends

Visiting the Grapewins is like dropping in on some old friends, who live comfortably but not pretentiously. Charley, whom you've interrupted at his wood-working, readily offers to show you his work-shop when you appear to be interested. If it's the new addition that's been built to provide the spacious new bedroom and billiard room, you're eager to inspect, Anna says.

"Go and see Charley's work-shop and we'll do the house later."

CHARLEY GRAPEWIN PEGGY DOYLE

Charley Grapewin, veteran actor, interviewed in his Hollywood home by Peggy Doyle, Boston Evening American reporter, showing Miss Doyle his collection of pipes, left to him by the late Sam Hardy.

The work-shop is a separate little structure to the right of the garden, snuggling under an olive tree and almost covered with grapevine. On the shelf that goes around the room are lathe, saws of various kind, wood-cutting machines and all the other equipment for fine cabinet making.

Here Charley constructs the miniature card-table tops, cigarette boxes, cigar humidors and other wood-inlay knick-knacks that are among the most appreciated gifts received by fortune's darlings of the neighborhood.

After dinner, you'll invariably find the Grapewins engaged in a game of pool.

"Every night after dinner," says Charley, "Anna and I play 100 points of pool. Good for the digestion."

The billiard room is Charley's contribution to the interior decoration of the house. With the help of a carpenter, he panelled the entire room in a honey-colored maple wood.

"Me when I was 13," he says picking up an old picture and indicating a skinny, eager-eyed lad in tights, surrounded by men and women in similar garb or in tinsely costumes. "That was when I had my first job. It was with the Silbon Troupe, an aerial act, with the Barnum circus.

"It was understood at home, in Xenia, O., that I was to join my father in the lumber business eventually but I didn't want to be a business man. I was quite an athlete in school.

Runs Away

"When the Silbon Troupe came to our town I decided here was my chance to escape the business world. I traveled all over America and visited Europe with the troupe.

"Then we had a chance to get into vaudeville, and the trio left the circus. Finally, the act broke up at Portland, Ore., and I joined a stock company there.

"It was during this time—exactly 40 years ago August 1—that Anna and I were married and I convinced her that she ought to go on the stage."

"Well, we've been married 36 years, they've been years rich with living. I wouldn't have missed any of it, not even the sorrows and disappointments which have deepened our joys and triumphs. We've been rarely happy, and I guess it wasn't such a bad idea to let Charley have his way all these years."

Old-time theater-goers will remember Charley Grapewin and Anna Chance as leading headliners of the "big time." He began to write his own plays, "Chimmie Fadden," "Baggage Check" and "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp," which launched him to Broadway stardom and in which he appeared in every big city in America.

Coming to Hollywood, he was first signed up for comedy roles by Hal Christie Studios.

Following his outstanding hit in "Petrified Forest," he came to M-G-M to play the heroine's father in "Ah, Wilderness!" This was followed by "The Voice of Bugle Ann" role, the old father in "The Good Earth," and now "just an old chess-player in "Captains Courageous."

"Good character actors," says Charley, "who are reliable, sober and can be counted on to make the best of even the least important role, are invaluable to a good director. A big part makes itself but you have to give all of your talent and experience and understanding to a lesser part.

Character Roles

"I find also that the best directors leave character interpretation up to the experienced actor.

"A director who knows his artists and his camera angles and has a good cameraman usually tells the actor, 'Let me see what you're going to do.' He may suggest stressing a phrase or a little more restraint, but he never interprets the character for him."

Miss Doyle will be coming right along in tomorrow's Boston Evening American with another At-Home Interview. She is in Hollywood talking home-talk with your favorites. Don't miss one of the series.

'HACK-SACK' TIP WINS LABORER $25 PRIZE

By THE NEWSTIP EDITOR

Sensing the value after discovering a woman's leg in a burlap bag in the harbor off East Boston, an East Boston laborer dashed a half mile to phone the Newstip Editor.

This tip enabled the Boston Evening American to be the FIRST on the street with the story which opened the hack-sack mystery.

To this laborer is awarded this week's first prize of $25 in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser News Tip Contest.

Second prize of $10 was awarded to a Dover stenographer for her tip on a Newton woman plunging 50-feet from a Needham tower.

Additional information on the "hack-sack" murder furnished by a Winthrop salesman resulted in his receiving the $5 third prize.

The ten following received $1 awards:

A West Roxbury bookkeeper for a tip on a Brookline heiress entering a hospital for a rest; a Newark, N. J., pilot for first news of a trick landing at the airport in which a near tragedy occurred; a Reading laborer for information on a man electrocuted by a live wire; a Boston housewife for tip of a cat on a pole which led to EXCLUSIVE pictures.

An usher for tip on a North End accident; a Boston janitor for information of a man's body found in the harbor; a Roxbury operator for tip on plane flying to rescue of stricken man aboard a boat at sea; a Quincy repair man for tip on two-alarm fire; a Brookline clerk for tip on a fire, and a Chelsea housewife for tip on an automobile accident.

Remember each week the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser awards $50 in prizes for news tips. Just call LIBERTY 4000 and ask for the newstip editor. We do the rest.

Howard Has Plenty of Worries

Those dark circles under the melancholy eyes of "Hamlet," to be presented by Leslie Howard at the Boston Opera House Monday night, will doubtless be natural and not a work of art.

For, besides playing the leading role, Howard has also produced and directed "Hamlet," and it is the first time he has ever done all three things at the same time.

"And don't think I'm not worried," he said last night in New York, tracing the bluish shadows under his eyes.

"Hamlet is supposed to be worried and frightened throughout the play, and for me to use grease paint to simulate worry would be a definite case of carrying coals to Newcastle. As a matter of fact, if I lose much more sleep over this play I may have to put on some makeup to make myself look a little less haggard."

Calcutta, Oct. 13 (AP)—Dr. F. J. Multhers, described as an American physician from Los Angeles, arrived today to treat a sleepless Indian millionaire who has had only 20 minutes natural rest in almost three years.

The patient, Rai Bahadur Ramjidar Bajoria, has offered $50,000 for temporary relief and $100,000 for a permanent cure.

Dr. Multhers took over the case after treatment with a British massaging machine had failed to improve the man's condition.

Skin Troubles

Come from Constipation

Constipation is the cause of most complexion troubles. Poisons from the waste matter are picked up by the blood and carried to all parts of the body, especially the skin.

No one needs to have a sallow, muddy complexion. Proper diet, exercise, surface cleanliness and above all—internal cleanliness. Nujol prevents intestinal poisons that ruin your health and complexion.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach, and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so natural in its action.

Nujol makes up for a deficiency of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular bowel movements without griping.

Just try Nujol regularly for the next month and see if you don't feel better than you ever suspected you could.

Ask your druggist for Nujol.

Runaway Auto Parks on Porch

Cornelius Hanasio, of Parker street Roxbury, was awakened today by police officers ringing his front doorbell. They wanted to know how long he'd been parking an automobile on his porch.

He came out to find a light sedan, badly wrecked, resting on the floor of the porch, with its nose smashed against the wall of the house. He hadn't heard it hit.

Police concluded the machine had slipped its brakes and coasted, driverless, down Parker street hill. They sought the owner by checking the registration number.

Boston's First Reservoir, built near Dock Square in 1652

Sixty-Five Billion Gallons of Water

await the turn of your faucet

BOSTON'S first water supply system was established in 1652 when fire-fearing colonists scooped out a reservoir twelve feet square near what is today Dock Square. It was fed by neighboring wells and brooks and stood ready to fill and refill the splashing leather buckets of the fire line. In 1795 the city first turned to its suburbs for water by laying hollowed pitch pine logs to the town of Roxbury.

At Clinton, Massachusetts, the great Wachusett reservoir now holds captive sixty-five billion gallons of pure water. From about a third of the distance across the Commonwealth comes this vast supply to meet the growing demands of Boston. Through a network of nearly three thousand miles of pipe it is available at your home. It stands ready under pressure in nearby street hydrants to drown out fire. With water from the Lake Cochituate and Sudbury reservoirs and the additional supply from the nearly completed Swift River project available, the needs of Boston's Metropolitan District have been anticipated for many years to come.

Today Boston's Metropolitan District consumes 135,000,000 gallons in every twenty-four hours. Pride may indeed be taken in the great system which provides this unfailing supply.

This bank in its century and a half of service has witnessed great changes in Boston. The ability of this institution to keep pace with the changing needs of its customers is the best proof of its fitness to serve you today.

Senator Austin Shows:

How Jews Raised Arab Standards

This is the second of a series of articles by Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont, a member of the Hearst Senatorial Unofficial Commission to Palestine, giving his report on the crisis in the Holy Land.

Senator Austin is a member of the Senate judiciary committee and is a constitutional lawyer of distinction. While in Palestine he made a special study of the mandate and the obligations of the United States in connection with its administration.

By WARREN R. AUSTIN
U. S. Senator From Vermont

The Hearst Commission to Palestine first visited Egypt and obtained a basis of comparison between the condition of the Arabs there and that of the Arabs in Palestine.

Palestine is about the same size as Vermont. It is surrounded by Arab countries which form a mighty crescent whose horns reach the Mediterranean, the western boundary of Palestine.

The circumscribed area comprehended in the Balfour declaration and in the mandate drafted in 1922 was pinched down in the east as far as the Jordan by an act of the British government known as the Declaration of Amman of May 25, 1923.

By this act the benefits of the mandate were withheld from transJordan and the existence of an independent Arab government, under Emir Abdullah Ibn Hussein, was recognized in the latter territory. The validity of this act has been frequently challenged by many Zionists.

The geographical and ethnological matrix which contains the Palestinian problem now being cut data cannot be carved off or disregarded. The location of the Jewish national home is in an area less than one-hundredth part of the whole area inhabited by Arabic speaking peoples.

Desert Barriers

Vast stretches of desert, however, separate Palestine in the east and in the south and west the great Arab centers of population, and form natural protective barriers around the Holy Land where the right has been granted to the Jewish people to establish a national home without prejudicing the civil and religious rights of existing Jewish communities.

Eighty per cent of the land that was in Palestine on the anomalous date of the mandate (a date there since long before Moses was put in the bulrushes, we were informed.

The peasants were Canaanites. A very small percentage were Bedouins, who constituted the majority in transJordan, the remainder save for the Jews, consisted of city dwellers representing a mixture of Arabs, Greeks, Byzantines, Romans and others.

The Jews were small in number relatively, but were faithful keepers of the light of Judaism.

It is certain that the Arabs of Palestine represent an amalgam of every invasion. Persian, Assyrian, Greek and Crusader, left a residue in the land. The census of 1931 showed 80 languages and dialects spoken in Palestine.

It is undeniable that the spiritual vigor and self-discipline on the part of the Jewish immigrants, and a determination to redeem the prostrate land of their forefathers and to signal a lesson for their race in the promised land, has achieved miraculous transformations there.

"Milk and Honey"

Deserts have become forests. Swamps have become orchards and vineyards. "Milk and honey" has become again descriptive of that part of the land cultivated by the Jews. Health for Jews and Arabs alike has been promoted by the purification of the water and the amplification of its supply. Drainage, sewerage and other hygienic works, and especially the health centers, and the excellent hospitals and dispensaries operated by the Hadassah have materially improved the lives of all the inhabitants of the country.

The death and infant mortality rates within the last decade dropped sharply. Educational facilities were widely developed, culminating in excellent universities both Jewish and Arabic. Palestine boasts the highest per capita school budgets in the Near East.

The tendency of wages has been upward for Arabs, as a consequence of Jewish standards. The wage of unskilled Arab workmen in Palestine is twice as much as in Egypt, and probably three times as much as it used to be before the coming of the Jews.

The opportunities for Arab employment have greatly increased. There are about 1500 Arabs employed in Jewish industry, and about 4000 Arabs working in Jewish agricultural settlements. In 1921 there were 80 men employed as laborers in Haifa harbor. In 1936 about 1600 Arabs were employed there, thanks to the building of the new port by Jewish enterprise.

Land Values Rise

The value of land in Palestine has been raised beyond the wildest dreams of ten decades ago. With the exception of 5 per cent of the land owned by Jews, the Arabs control by power all of the country. Because the Jewish settlers are eager to acquire land, inflation of values in the real estate field is buyers' market. A large stream of capital has in fact also been poured into Arab coffers.

Notwithstanding the strike, capital and labor of Jews and Arabs have in some instances been working together in peace all along as in the case of the potash plant on the Dead sea and the cement plant at Haifa.

The political and economic issues involved in the reconstruction of the Holy Land under the mandate concern the attention of American public opinion.

In addition the monumental example set by the Jews of Palestine, of obedience in constituted authority and exercise of self-restraint under terrific provocation during the prevailing terrorism, furnishes a compatriotic interest in the promotion of the national home for the Jews by all friends of humanity and peace.

LAUNDERING IS EASIER BY SYSTEM

Good news for careful buyers is the announcement of warranted washable and certified color-fast cottons and linens, obtainable both in piece goods and ready-to-wear. Permanence of shade and lasting fit are assured by the red, gold, and black All-Guard tag identifying these fabrics as Sanforized-shrunk and linen wash-tested.

Samples of each textile are washed ten times at the Rinso laboratories. Often this test is the equivalent of a whole season's laundering. Furthermore this test —called the manufacturer's guarantee of high quality, permanent fit, and fast color—insures complete satisfaction for each purchaser.

Thrifty women know that careful laundering is just as important as selecting the correct fabric. Before washing, clothes should be divided into groups of white cottons and linens, with colored things piled separately. Silks, woolens, and rayons are set aside for special handling. Now is the time to remove stains that hot water might set, and to repair rips and tears.

SOAKING SAVES LABOR

Homemakers everywhere are enthusiastic about the time and effort saved on washday by Rinso-soaking white linens and cottons. Enough Rinso to maintain thick lasting suds throughout the soaking is shaken into lukewarm water. The dirtier clothes should be placed on the bottom of the tub. Collar bands and cuffs that are specially soiled ought to be rubbed with dry Rinso, rolled tightly within the garment and pushed under the water. A ten or fifteen-minute soak loosens most of the dirt; an hour or two is even better, and many people find it more convenient to soak their clothes overnight.

While the dirt is being loosened from the white things, the colored cottons and linens are cheered over. New fabrics, without the All-Guard tag certifying color fastness, should be tested by squeezing a portion of the garment in tepid water for three minutes or so.

White cottons and linens are washed in water as hot as the hands can bear, and even hotter if a washer is used. Enough Rinso is added to make lively two or three-inch suds. Boil soiled ones especially after the preliminary soak, and rubbing is seldom needed.

SEPARATE FABRICS

Colored fabrics are soaked in lukewarm water, only when they are positively dye-fast, and then for not more than 20 minutes. The cottons and linens should be rinsed in lukewarm-to-cold waters.

Clothes are thoroughly wrung from one water to another, and if bluing is used, it is added during the third rinse.

Range Oil Burner Cooks and Heats

Today, as a result of the development of modern range oil burners, literally hundreds of thousands of kitchens have done away forever with all the nuisance and bother that goes with making fires. A simple turn of the valve replaces kindling, dust and ashes.

Range oil burners are designed for installation in the fire-box of your present coal range. The burners give quick clean heat that serves a threefold purpose: cooking, warming your kitchen, and providing ample hot water. They are easy to keep clean and offer economy with ease of operation.

The fuel tank which rests upon an attractively designed stand is finished to harmonize with modern kitchen color schemes. It is especially suitable for use with porcelain enamel kitchen ranges but naturally may be used in any coal-burning range.

In this day of testing laboratories and institutes there is no need to be uncertain concerning quality of the range oil burner that you choose, for if they are approved by Good Housekeeping Institute or listed as standard by Underwriters' Laboratories, you can rest assured that they are safe and reliable and will offer years of carefree service. The Florence Range Oil Burner has both of these endorsements. One of these burners is to be given as a prize at the Cooking School.

A Cleanser That Conquers Stains

Even the most immaculate housewife finds that in the kitchen and bathroom stubborn stains are inevitable and if formerly used to require a great deal of rubbing and scrubbing to remove them.

With the advent of Clorox this labor came to an end, for this efficient cleansing agent might be termed pugnacious in its attack on every type of stain on tile, enamel, woodwork and other hard surfaces, as well as being useful in whitening clothes. In addition Clorox has deodorant properties.

A package of Clorox will be found in the 25 baskets of nationally known products given out each day at the Cooking School.

Ripe Olives Add Zestful Flavor

Ripe olives, next to characterful seasonings and spices, are one of the most useful foods for adding subtle, chef-like distinction to everyday cooking. It goes without saying that they are an exceedingly wholesome and nutritious food. In fact, in a number of countries, the olive, used in one form or another, is one of the staple items of diet for many families.

In this country, women who are proud of their reputation of being much better than average cooks, use frequent meals of ripe olives in many different ways. The effortless way to use ripe olives is as an hors-d'oeuvre along with radishes, celery, and green pickles. Chopped, they can be used in almost any kind of a sandwich filling; as an added ingredient in many types of salads, especially sea food or vegetable, as well as salad dressings of the thousand island variety.

STAGE SETTING ARRANGED BY JORDAN'S

Homemakers in attendance at the Cooking School will have an opportunity to see attractive table settings complete with the proper linens, china, glassware and silverware provided by Jordan Marsh Company, which is also supplying the rugs, lamps and kitchen tables.

In each of the homefurnishing departments of Jordan's, advice is available on the correct manner of setting tables for formal or informal dinners and lunches and for arrangement of kitchen utilities to give the greatest convenience and efficiency.

The completely furnished suite of rooms in the annex also furnishes helpful suggestions for those who may be planning to furnish one room or an entire home.

New Lamps Designed for Better Light

Because in the past so many lamps for the home have been lovely to look at and totally useless for reading the evening newspaper, a new trend has developed in portable lamp design. The Illuminating Engineering Society has assisted the lamp manufacturers in designing lamps that are correct from the illuminating and mechanical standpoints.

Specifications have been prepared for study and reading lamps, semi-indirect floor lamps, bridge lamps and end-table lamps. The manufacturers who design lamps of these types meeting the requirements of the Illuminating Engineering Society are allowed to tag them with the approval tag of that organization. Thus when the homemaker sees in her favorite store a lamp bearing the tag she knows without question that it will produce the right amount of illumination and light of the right quality.

Mazda lamp bulbs have increased greatly in efficiency and the cost of both bulbs and current has gone down so that every penny today buys approximately 70 per cent more light than it did twenty years ago.

Many new kinds of lamp bulbs have been designed, so that there is not only the standard sizes but also a host of small lamps for use where little light is wanted. Tubular lamps are now available in many sizes. Bulbs are also made giving three levels of lighting, low, medium and high.

BUY AMERICAN BULBS

To be assured of present high quality in lamp bulbs it is necessary to buy ones of standard manufacture. Those of inferior foreign or domestic manufacture, may consume too much current, give off too little light, blacken too soon, or not last long enough. It is more economical in the long run to pay a few pennies more for the bulb itself, and beware of "bargains" unless the quality of the product is known.

Among the numerous attractive prizes at the annual American-Advertiser free cooking school are four "I.E.S." approved study lamps, one of which will be given away, complete with the proper size bulb, daily.

"The board of overseers must be forced into assuring Boston's needy of an immediate fuel supply. I have yet to find the board is going to delay the matter despite the storm of criticism it experienced last year, when we relied on it to distribute fuel on freezing weather.

"The present board is the most cruel and callous [illegible] and heartless a group as ever had supervision over the poor. Today thousands of mothers and children are shivering in drafty homes.

B. C. Hits Some Nice Drives Against Temple But 4-Putts the Greens

THE MEETING OF THE OLD FOOTBALL maestros took place many hours after the Temple-Boston College game in the players' tunnel beneath Fenway's his feathery countenance in an unaccustomed smile and linked arms with Pop Warner as he hobbled on a cane. Pop looked every inch the patriarch, his heavy features wearing the dignity of an old circus lion and his famed fiddler's haircut curling beneath the brim of his hat.

I passed together into the [illegible] locker room, where the Temple athletes began stripping off their woolens, kicked loose their [illegible] suits and stood [illegible] air—statues of [illegible] muscle. A [illegible] rubbing arms, storing [illegible] property trunks [illegible].

Pop drew the lean man over near the grilled windows, propping his [illegible] hip against the rubbing table and chatting on the technical beauties of the game. It was strictly a cracker barrel type of conversation such as might occur at any crossroads store between rural neighbors on the autumn circuit. Not at all what one might expect in an epic encounter between the leading lights of their coaching profession.

GIL IS SATISFIED

DOBIE SAID HE ENJOYED THE GAME—I believe he was sincere—pumped Pop's hand and passed into the adjoining chamber to count sprains and bruises among his own men. He said to a waiting knot of newsmen that he was satisfied. And well he might be.

[illegible] taking exasperated naps at the [illegible] usses along the line.

MAKALI SEALS IT WITH A KISS

THE SECOND TOUCHDOWN CAME IN the fourth quarter, quite as unexpectedly as the first, when Gus Makali, who would look good in the Boston Redskins' lineup, faded back while fumbling for the laces of the ball in the pocket [illegible] Temple's five eligible receivers were [illegible] crowded in a fantail formation like burglars detailed [illegible] to blowing a safe. Finally at the last instant when the B. C. tacklers were reaching for handholds on his throat Makali let fly a 50-yard cast down the center alley, less as a sharpshooter fires at a moving target than a goshamighty heave that carried a good luck kiss and a message for whom it may concern. [illegible] his shoulder like Mel Almada, [illegible] right field [illegible]

TRULY WARNER

THIS SOUNDS AS THOUGH TEMPLE WON the game by blind luck. But it was sound, hard-hitting football which set the stage for these passes, drew the B. C. secondary into shallow positions behind the line and laid them open to deep passing. It is one of Pop Warner's favorite tactics to work on opposing defenses as a gypsy minstrel plays an accordion, drawing the secondary in close by rushing and driving them back by passing. And no Warner team ever lacks a pair of great football pitchers in his backfield, no matter how far Pop's agents have to fan the haylields to find them.

I have seen some of the best Warner teams this far, including Hal Cress, Dave and Dartmouth, but I would place Temple on top the [illegible] I have seen [illegible] services. It will be interesting to see what they can do next afternoon at October 31 when Dr. Eddie Anderson's [illegible] to Temple's brick bowl in the suburbs of Philadelphia. It should make a rousing party.

The Dobie Strategy That Failed—Owls Clip Eagles

B. C. Effort Pleasing to Dobie

Undismayed by their 14 to 0 defeat at the hands of the tremendously powerful Temple eleven, Coach Gil Dobie's Boston College [illegible]

Next Saturday the Gold and Maroon machine journeys to Durham, N. H. where they will meet Coach Bill Colwell's New Hampshire State Wildcats.

The following Saturday one of the toughest and hardest outfits on the B. C. schedule visits Alumni Field with the [illegible] Army [illegible] [illegible] on the agenda. [illegible] [illegible] preparations, such [illegible] never made before [illegible] Temple game. According to Gil

"My boys did as well as I expected they would. They played a good game, but Temple has a big, fast, powerful and aggressive team, a very good team, and I think the hardest opponent we will face all season."

Temple has a much better club than Holy Cross which plays the Owls in Philadelphia one week from next Saturday and should be able to whip the Crusaders according to Dobie who has seen both the teams in action.

After the game, Pop Warner stated that "B. C. has a very good team and a team that will [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Out halfback, who tallied the first touchdown on that dazzling double pass and reverse was the only [illegible] Sunday he showed the way to Pat Dengis and a fast field of [illegible] fractured rib.

LEWIS HANEY ON BUSINESS

Industrial Activity

SUGGESTS YEAR'S PEAK

Still to Be Reached

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Oct. 13—Last week industrial and business activity held at the generally good level attained this Fall. On the whole, such changes as occurred suggest some further expansion before the peak of the year is reached.

There was a good deal of irregularity, however, and commodity prices have as yet failed to regain the buoyancy they were beginning to show before France left the gold standard.

Weather conditions were unfavorable in some areas. The political campaign is somewhat unsettling.

The so-called devaluation of various foreign currencies has created some confusion in markets.

But, at the worst, these mostly represent only temporarily disturbing conditions. The general trend continues to point upward.

Incidentally, the stock market last week moved up to new high levels for the bull market. Backed by low money rates and inflated bank credit, the prospects of increased business activity and the heavy dividend disbursements which the tax on undistributed earnings will force, are bringing increased speculation.

Considering the season, steel production has been holding with little change. The current rate of between 70 and 75 percent of theoretical capacity is close to the actual maximum.

Accordingly, the growing probability that finished steel prices will be advanced early next year may have important results. It may start "forward buying" that will, in turn, touch off further price advances, plant expansion, etc.

A week ago, automobile production was reported at the seasonal bottom. Last week, as anticipated, the new seasonal spurt began. Some difficulties in getting machinery to running smoothly on the new models slowed up the expansion.

The drive to lighten the load of used cars before plunging into a new campaign is also a factor. But production is again above a year ago and the outlook favors a good season. In any case, the current move will give industrial figures a lift this month and in November.

Cotton textile production is another industry that holds at or near maximum actual economic capacity. Furthermore, unfilled orders are large enough to insure high operation for the rest of the year.

The lumber industry also shows gains, probably reflecting improvement in private residential building.

Another good increase in railway carloadings was encouraging. Probably, with coal as the chief exception, freight traffic is at the seasonal peak. The recent more favorable showing, however, together with the good outlook for heavy industries, suggests that the decline to come will be less than usual.

Commodity prices impressed me as tending to stabilize after a period of seasonal pressure and the first shock of "devaluation."

Gold continues to pour into the United States, while French authorities are disappointed at the small amount of repatriation of French gold. One result was a large gain in our excess bank reserves. Thus, despite the expansion in bank loans that has occurred of late, there is no suggestion of tight credit ahead.

It should ever be remembered that we are witnessing a bank deposit inflation, not a bank loan inflation—one based on government debt rather than private debt. (For example, the stock market has been running up on the basis of otherwise idle deposits, not on "brokers' loans.")

Recent trends should, therefore, tend to keep things going along the same lines.

In conclusion, two disturbing items have to be mentioned. First, the spread of "devaluation" to Czechoslovakia and Italy threatens to intensify their price competition with Japan.

Second, Roosevelt has announced his intention to extend the emergency period for devaluing the dollar further. Thus currency stabilization seems as far off as ever.

A vote for Roosevelt is a vote for cutting the value of your dollars—that is, their purchasing power.

EXPLAIN New Type GOLD GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

Associated Press Financial Editor

New York, Oct. 13—The "new type gold standard" announced by Secretary Morgenthau was explained by foreign exchange experts today as necessitated by the fact that the yellow metal is still the principal international standard of value.

With gold the principal medium of settling balances between nations, it would have been difficult to carry out the Franco-British-American "gentlemen's agreement" to preserve equilibrium in international exchanges without an agreement to exchange gold between the three countries.

Without provision to ship gold, a large flow of funds, say from London to New York, would mean heavy sales of British sterling in the open market and purchases of dollars. This would send the British currency sharply lower.

Good foreign exchange authorities explain, it is effect a reserve for settling international balances. When American purchases of sterling and British purchases of dollars in ordinary financing of trade find equal balance, no gold need be supplied. But when the movement becomes one-sided, then it is necessary to settle the difference by shipping gold, if a big fluctuation in the exchange rate is to be avoided.

Of course, the British treasury's equalization fund, and the American treasury's stabilization fund, would keep the rate stable by accumulating huge balances of each other's currency on paper by ordinary transactions through banking channels, but neither fund would be permitted to pile up by ordinary transactions through banking channels, but neither fund would be permitted to pile up by ordinary transactions through banking channels, but neither fund would be permitted to accumulate too much foreign currency at a time when gold values of currencies are not definitely fixed, for it would involve an element of risk.

The new agreement between Great Britain and New York, announced by Secretary Morgenthau last night, restores gold to its function of settling international balances, but instead of permitting banks and individuals to carry out this function of gold, the American, British and French treasury funds will do it themselves.

Since currency flow has been a source of rather substantial profits to some of the large Wall Street banks during the large influx of gold between Jan. 21, 1934, and the time the bank of France slowed selling gold last month. Under the new plan, the Federal Reserve bank of New York will act direct-ly for the U. S. treasury's stabilization fund, and the private bankers will be out of it.

CHEAPER Money VIEWED HURT OR HELP U. S. TRADE?

By BROADAN WALL

Universal Service

New York, Oct. 13—The stock market has deemed the whole readjustment of currencies now taking place in Europe as unworthy of more than passing notice.

Indeed, most people interested in the market are taking at face value the assurances from high quarters that the devaluation movement is opening a new era of international peace and economic understanding.

If the United States is left out of this prospect, perhaps the prophets will be proven true. What about the United States? The one certain thing about the currency changes is that the dollar has become much more expensive to the outside world.

The Frenchman finds it necessary to pay more than 20 francs for one dollar's worth of American goods that formerly cost him about 16 francs. The Swiss and the Dutch find their purchasing value similarly diluted, when buying American goods. The same procedure is taking place with all other currencies which are being cheapened. Is this a prospect promising renewed foreign buying of American goods?

It seems more likely that the money cheapening process will encourage foreign American buying of foreign goods.

Another thing to consider: American companies doing business abroad will find their dollar-income depleted by the percentage of shrinkage in value of foreign currencies. That is, an oil company doing business in France, for example, will find that it requires more than 20 francs to buy a dollar—and dollars are what count to the American stockholder.

If prices rise proportionately to the shrinkage in exchange value of these foreign currencies, or if the business volume abroad grows enough to offset the shrinkage in currencies, then the damage will be lessened. If business done by American companies abroad does not expand, then a real loss will come to these companies when they convert these currencies into dollars.

The whole competitive status of business in currency-devaluating countries has been greatly strengthened as compared with the American business. Things become much cheaper in these countries, and international trade follows the lowest prices.

DISTRIBUTION

Farmers Suffer Most

Assuming that automobile sales represent a good index of income, the chart shows that farmers and artisans suffered most during the depression.

The financial and professional group suffered the least.

Automobile sales to farmers dropped from about 650,000 cars in 1929 to 50,000 in 1932, a decline of 85 per cent. In the artisans group, comprised of factory workers, masons, carpenters and mechanics, sales dropped from 840,000 in 1929 to 145,000 in 1932, a decline of 82.5 per cent.

From 1929 to 1932 sales to the mercantile group declined 68 per cent, financial group 55 per cent and professional group 49 per cent.

Sales to each group have increased every year since 1932, but taking all the groups together their purchases in 1935 were still about 1,216,500 cars short of the peak year of 1929.

Source of information, John W. Scoville, chief statistician for the Chrysler Corporation.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, Oct. 13—Although the basic operating position of the public utilities is sound, inasmuch as the production of electricity is well above the 1929 figures, their stocks as a group have shown less price appreciation from the lows of 1932 than any other major group, one broker points out.

Were it not for the uncertainties arising from political and judicial circumstances, the utilities, their speculative utility shares would be selling at substantially higher levels. The recent conference in Washington on the Tennessee Valley Authority suggest a more cooperative attitude on the part of the Federal Government but Supreme Court decisions on the constitutionality of the public utility company act of 1935 and the various Federal power projects cannot be predicted. Between now and election, however, the utilities may offer trading opportunities as sentiment regarding the outcome fluctuates. For such purposes the broker suggests the stocks of the following companies: North American, Electric Bond & Share, Columbia Gas & Electric, Federal Light & Traction, Electric Power & Light, Engineers Public Service, Stone & Webster, American Water Works, National Power & Light, American Power & Light and United Light & Power "A."

Full Telephone Dividend Earned

Much of the current demand for American Telephone & Telegraph stock is strictly investment buying inspired by the comparatively attractive yield of slightly more than 5 per cent. According to close observers speculative interest in the stock is almost negligible because of the small immediate prospect of higher dividends due to the undistributed profits tax. Telephone throughout the entire depression continued an unbroken record of 39 annual dividends although it has failed to earn the full rate since 1930. According to current estimates earnings for the September quarter to be published later this month will show that the quarter dividend approximately covered for the first time in recent years. Assuming this to be accurate this promises nine months net on a consolidated basis equal to slightly more than $7 a share against dividend charges for the period of $6.75 a share.

C. & O. Dividends Set New Style

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's solution to the problem of paying out earnings to avoid the undistributed profits tax, yet at the same time keeping a substantial part of the earnings available as a company reserve, may set a new style in earnings distribution plan for other railroads. It is indicated, C. & O. if stockholders approve, will pay its regular $2.80 of dividends this year. In addition, it will pay an extra cash dividend of $1. In addition to that, it will create a new issue of 4 per cent non-cumulative $100 preference stock, and authorize another dividend of $2 payable in this preference issue. This will lift C. & O.'s dividend disbursements for 1936, including regulars, extra and stock dividends, to $5.80 a common share, an amount which will be in the vicinity of the road's anticipated earnings for the full year 1936.

Wall Street Hears

New York, Oct. 13 (INS)—That American Tobacco (AT) is expected to report around $3.10 a share on combined Class B and common stocks for the year.

That the $2 annual dividend of Consolidated Distillers (U) may be supplemented by an extra late this year.

That F. W. Woolworth (Z) is deriving a substantial portion of its earnings from the higher priced lines now handled.

PACIFIC Mutual PLAN NEW SETUP SOUGHT

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (US)—An attempt will be made on October 19 to get the Superior Court of California to put its seal of approval on the revised plan for rehabilitating the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, the West Coast's largest risk bearing institution.

Under this plan as formulated by Samuel L. Carpenter, Jr., state insurance commissioner, the holders of so-called non-cancelable health and accident policies will be asked to take the rap through agreeing to accept reduced benefits in case of newly maturing claims.

Thus, California gets its own sample of the wide-spread fashion toward devaluation.

Until trouble began, many regarded the company as a single entity, which would apply its full resources to the fulfillment of its contractual obligations. However, the insurance Commissioner's theory is that the company represents a series of more or less independent compartments, and that the assets of one cannot be applied against the needs of others.

Accordingly, the life and all other types of policyholders except the non-cancelable policyholders are nominally to be fully protected under the new setup. Accordingly, such opposition as will appear to this plan is expected to come from attorneys from the noncancellable policyholders. Moreover, it is expected that the Giannini interests will continue to press their alternative plan for purchase of the business of the company, which, according to their proposals, would be absorbed by their own insurance affiliate.

Acting under a new emergency statute, Commissioner Carpenter takes a hard boiled and realistic view. He wanted to make it so attractive for the life insurance policyholders to remain with the new and reformed company that there will be no incentive for them to switch to other companies.

He recognizes that wholesale switching would be harmful to everybody, since it would result in the sacrifice of risks, with those in ill health who are now uninsurable banging on.

JANTZEN MILLS Raises Dividend

Jantzen Knitting Mills declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on common, payable November 1 to stock of record October 20, increasing the 10-cent quarterly rate distributed since November, 1934. Directors also voted an initial quarterly dividend of $1.25 on new 5 per cent preferred, payable December 1 to stock of record November 25.

A wage dividend of 5 per cent was announced to all employes with more than three years of continuous service, and is based on total wages from Sept. 1, 1935, to Aug. 31, 1936. John A. Zennebauer, president reports 1936 business improved and 1937 prospects as good.

NEW HAVEN R. R.

Trustees SEEK MORE Time

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Legal technicalities have forced the trustees for the New Haven to ask the Federal Court to extend the time in which to submit a reorganization plan.

Reorganization plans of subsidiaries as well as various questions relating to the rights and liabilities of the New Haven itself certain of these plans are bound to the request of trustees for more time.

Both the Old Colony and Hartford & Connecticut Western Railroads have recently been authorized to file plans, stated until their plans are complete the trustees of the New Haven say they cannot complete their own plan. Also they point out that certain questions relating to the rights and liabilities of the New Haven are also at issue in the reorganization proceedings of the Connecticut Company and the New York, Westchester & Boston. Decisions on these must be had first before they can materially affect the New Haven's plans.

Some analysts believe they detect the first flaw in the business picture likely to mark the end of the present upswing of business in the steel production. Their claim is there is a doubled manufacturing capacity over the 1929 peak. Although the farmer declined during September, continue optimistic in midwest, and railroads are still some rather sharply. Such a situation inevitably is indicative of a pending change in the near future. In the current instance it may be delayed because of steel. Peace in Europe would probably soon lots; business activity may be adversely affected.

Notebook: Bullishness on bank stocks is increasing. Those inclined to point out that earning assets have been declining. The top of the bull market is a long way off. . . . Once the United Business Service of Boston. Which predicates its ideas on the fact speculation has not yet reached the danger point. And the fact the rise is in its most healthy phase, that of discounting earnings. . . . Youngstown Steel Door, recent addition to the big-board list, is down for earnings of $3.50 in the books of registrars. . . .

A buy on dips policy is still the logical procedure for long traders and investors. Those who have not yet bought stocks for the rise should tend to prevent it for the present and to wait for a reaction to occur at least. The fact that the industrial may be traveling along in no hurry a gain may be the best that can be played. But the market has a position of strength that is the largest in about six years.

Department store stocks were watched in view of plans said to be under consideration by several of the larger units for the expansion of their credit facilities. At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions sterling was off to $4.9075, and francs to $.0660.

Bits o' Gossip: Extra liberality for Standard of Jersey stockholders is expected at the December directors' meeting. . . . Firestone seems sure to pay a larger dividend as the close of the fiscal year. . . . Fact, postponement until the period closes, of the directors' meeting practically assures it. . . . Schenley boosters are still telling all listeners how well their favorite is doing. . . . Sales of 56 per share earnings are sure for 1936. . . . Inland Steel is considered attractive by certain trading groups. . . . As a long-time booster of Hercules motor, we would like to know if Chrysler is buying into the company.

STOCKS Zoom AHEAD

NEW 5-YEAR PEAKS HIT

New York, Oct. 13—Spurred by optimistic interpretations of the three-power gold shipping pact and bright domestic business news, the stock market zoomed to a new 5-year peak today with gains of fractions to around 3 points.

It was the seventh consecutive session in which the recovery top had been penetrated.

Large blocks of shares changed hands at the opening and for a while the rapid pace was the best in years. Early selling later slowed the pace somewhat and near the end of the session the activity was fully promoted.

Bonds trailed stocks in the forward movement, but were also stimulated as were foreign monetary units.

Wallgasmuth was a star performer, getting up about 5 on a 10,000-share transfer. Gains Brothers improved as much. Some issues were up as much as 10 points on initial sale of 10,000 shares.

Basic farm implements and better railroads gave the best account of themselves. The steels and motors were moderately better while the utilities were inclined to mark time.

Prominent on the upside were Steel, Du Pont, Union Pacific, Great Northern, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, J. I. Case, International Harvester, American Can, Westinghouse, American Tel & Tel and General Foods.

Unchanged to a shade improved were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, National Distillers, American Tobacco, American Smelting, Kennecott, Anaconda, Texas Corp., Standard Oil of New Jersey, Socony-Vacuum, General Electric, U. S. Realty and duPont.

Loew's was an exception with the issue off a point or so.

Timely Topics

The three-power gold shipping agreement held the principal attention in the boardrooms before the opening. Its significance to the industrial news was still seen as the main sustaining influence on security markets.

Holders of the steels noted with interest the estimate of the American Iron and Steel Institute that operations have stepped up to 74.9 per cent of capacity, the highest since 1929, and that the output for the week ended 7 was 1,000,000 tons more than the week before.

Brightening business news was the forecast of President Litchfield of Goodyear that the industry would do better than the record of 1936, which was the largest in about six years.

Department store stocks were watched in view of plans said to be under consideration by several of the larger units for the expansion of their credit facilities.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions sterling was off to $4.9075, and francs to $.0660.

MORE SHOE Manufacturers

American shoe manufacturers number 900, according to the reports published at the United States Department of commerce, against 882 a year ago.

The peak for shoe manufacturing was reached in 1923 when 1606 manufacturers were reported.

Some of the record gain is in shoes which hitherto had no shoe manufacturers.

Comments of Brokers

One chief concern during coming months should be the rising cost of maintaining our government which now takes 25 cents out of every dollar earned. All of us, in direct and indirect taxes.—Robert D. Lee & Co.

With buying of a delayed nature, which has been accumulated, necessities as they occur, between now and a culmination of this particular phase of advance, should not carry very far or last very long.—E. K. Molloy-Hornblower & Weeks.

Discriminate switching to the dividend paying trader is important for profitable operations at the next stage of advance. Issues that are confined to merchandising, motors, amusements, steels, rails and utilities, with some speculative ones can be found.—R. S. Feigus-Prentice, Skinner & Eddy.

There is little in the situation to suggest any correction will become dead enough to any of what individual issues will not be able to continue upward.—G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.

Nothing is in sight to change the main-line picture which warrants even higher stock prices, as that picture is one of unexpected developments of importance in the trade and a normal market movement.—J. P. Maher.

'PUT THE SPENDERS OUT!'

THE assault on WASTEFUL SPENDING made by Governor Landon in his Chicago address deserves the closest attention of all American voters.

It particularly concerns the younger citizens WHO HAVE MANY LONG YEARS OF TAXPAYING AHEAD OF THEM.

Mr. Landon summed up the whole campaign in a sentence:

"When the Government finances its costs by borrowing, IT MORTGAGES THE FUTURE INCOME OF EVERY FAMILY."

This plain truth was stated in answer to President Roosevelt's claim in his recent Pittsburgh speech that the unprecedented public debt PILED UP BY THE NEW DEAL would be paid by future increases in the national income.

The question the nation is entitled to put to Mr. Roosevelt is this:

Does the fact that the American people may earn more money in the future than they are earning now JUSTIFY THE GOVERNMENT IN WASTING THAT MONEY?

The Roosevelt Administration is not being called to account solely for its SPENDING of money, although its sins on that score are enough to damn it.

THE NEW DEAL IS ON THE CARPET FOR THROWING MONEY AWAY, for wasting it, spending it foolishly, wantonly, even dishonestly.

Even if the nation should be able to pay such bills without missing the money, THERE IS NO EXCUSE FOR THAT KIND OF SPENDING.

Future increases in income are devoutly HOPED FOR by all citizens. But they are also entitled to HOPE for an opportunity to utilize that income for their own needs, their own comforts and their own happiness.

The future income of the American people must not be a PLUNDER FUND for reckless and extravagant politicians.

The head of the American family is looking ahead to the time when his job will pay him wages enough to assure the welfare of himself and his dependents.

He does not want the Government to put a BLIGHT on that happy prospect by piling up tax burdens that will ABSORB all national and individual income FOR GENERATIONS TO COME.

Mr. Roosevelt's Administration is putting tax burdens on the country that will deprive the American people of all benefits of increased income.

The New Deal, as Landon warns, is MORTGAGING THE FUTURE INCOME OF EVERY AMERICAN CITIZEN.

The only way to preserve the benefits of future prosperity FOR THE PEOPLE, to avoid virtual slavery of future generations of Americans in the repayment of debts resulting from WASTEFUL SPENDING, was put in this terse phrase by Governor Landon:

"PUT THE SPENDERS OUT!"

Labor Remains Loyal

REJECTION by the British Labor Party of the UNITED FRONT OF COMMUNISM lends courage and inspiration to constructive labor movements throughout the world.

By a tremendous majority the Conference of Organized British Workers in Edinburgh denounced the Communist philosophy which offers only civil war and dictatorship as the solution of human problems.

The conference roared its approval of the words of Rhys Davies, Labor member of Parliament, when he said the Communists:

"Have attempted—and failed—to destroy this party from without. I want to prevent them from getting a chance to destroy us from within."

The loyalty of British labor to its own country and its own institutions is thus exemplified.

The same spirit of patriotic loyalty and constructive citizenship is being expressed IN THE UNITED STATES by the American Federation of Labor and its leaders, William Green, Mathew Woll and their associates. They are irrevocably opposed to infiltration of Communist influence into the workers' organizations of this country.

The United Front of Communism has its advocates in America, as it has in England. And here, as in England, the greatest labor organization stands as the INSURMOUNTABLE BARRIER TO ALIEN AND DESTRUCTIVE DOCTRINES.

Wasted Buying Power

THE unfavorable trade balance suffered by the United States during the first half of 1936 is a plain TABULATION OF NEW DEAL RESULTS.

It reveals the WASTE OF AMERICAN BUYING POWER for which the Roosevelt administration is responsible.

It is no longer necessary to ARGUE about the effect of New Deal policy on American foreign trade, because THE RESULTS ARE NOW AT HAND.

THESE RESULTS SUM UP AS FOLLOWS:

The United States IMPORTED more merchandise than it EXPORTED during the first six months of 1936.

This fact is not speculation on what may happen. It is an official report on WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

It is disclosed in an analysis of current trade balances by Amos E. Taylor, assistant chief of the finance division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

It means American buying power is supporting foreign factories, farmers and workers.

It means increasing idleness of American workers, farmers and factories.

Expediency Vs. Principle

THE titular head of the Democratic Party, President Roosevelt, wired to the candidates for Governor and Senator on the Democratic ticket in Minnesota when they withdrew in favor of the Communist-Indorsed Farmer-Labor Party:

"I WANT YOU TO KNOW HOW MUCH I APPRECIATE THE FINE SENSE OF LOYALTY WHICH PROMPTED YOU TO WITHDRAW FROM THE GUBERNATORIAL AND SENATORIAL RACE."

Governor Landon, the nominee of the Republican Party and of all TRUE DEMOCRATS for President of the United States, said in his Portland, Me., speech on September 12 after stating his AMERICAN principles:

"If you do not believe this, you had better not vote for me."

These two statements reveal in a piercing light the difference between MERE POLITICAL EXPEDIENCY and a courageous adherence to lifelong principles AT ANY PRICE.

Can any AMERICAN hesitate for a moment in his choice?

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

There's no more inspiring spectacle in our tragic world today than the brave, outspoken agony of that old man in the Vatican—broken-hearted over Spain's agony unashamed of that heartbreak.

Elsie Robinson

I am not a Catholic nor concerned with the Pope's position as a religious leader. But all my faith and pride in humanity is restored by this one man, at least, still dares to feel . . . dares to show the intensity of his feeling.

We are so contemptuous of emotional display, we moderns. We go into giggling gales of derision at the Victorian Era's hand-wringings and chest-heavings. Rich or poor, wise or unlettered, we pride ourselves on being the Dead Pan Generation and defy fate to wring a tear from our eye or a sigh from our lips.

There's no moment in life too serious and or sacred for wisecrackers. We'd rather compose a Dorothy Parker quip than have written "Paradise Lost."

"WE ARE COWARDS"

And we pride ourselves that such cynicism springs from courageous sophistication. Actually it's based on profound cowardice. We're afraid of life—not masters of it. Afraid we'll be hurt, laughed at, exposed. And too stupid to see the shallowness of our own pose. We are cowards.

But here is an old man, so powerful and protected that he is beyond criticism—so old and frail that he is exempt from ridicule. He could easily adopt the current attitude, turn his back on it all, retreat into prayer. Or assume that philosophical attitude so popular with mortals in the Upper Brackets who have sufficient cash to coddle their callous cowardice.

Even better, he might use his doctor as an excuse, hedge himself away from human horror with charts, blood pressure and diets.

Fashionable ailments all of them. Dr. Emile Coué, Dr. Frederick Peters, and many by our best authorities. But Pope Pius will have none of them.

As simply as a child, he bares his heart and grieves! As valiantly as a soldier, he raises his voice and fights!

Such a frail old heart, such a feeble voice, already fluttering on the brink of the grave. But as long as he can make them serve, Pope Pius will use them to assert his highest human right—the right to FEEL.

A COURAGEOUS MAN

Easy enough to talk and debate, advise and admonish. Easy and perfectly safe. But here is a man great enough to despise such safety. He has enough left of energy and emotion and intander it in one last glorious abandon of holy rage and pity!

This is humanity at its highest—this proud contempt of consignees for the safe and noble cause. How cheap it makes our shallow pretences appear! Any fool can wise-crack or go dead-pan. Any coward can quote the classics.

But only the truly great are wise enough to be simple, brave enough to be frank, strong enough to cast aside pretence and give themselves—their actual tears and sweat and blood—regardless of the price!

Many laudatory things may be said of this man when he passes to his rest. But no greater tribute can be paid than that, in a time of universal cowardice, when men can even from their own thoughts lest they suffer a little pain, HE DARED TO FEEL!

The Crape Hanger

This is the only sport this old Sad-Faced Sharpshooter goes in for—and he never misses a dollar that pops out of the family pocketbook.

The Eagle on the American dollar is just a clay pigeon to him!

Every coin we try to put in circulation now is shot to pieces as soon as it leaves our hand.

But the taxpayer is getting fed up with this macabre marksman with his "PULL"—meaning the pull he has with the powers-that-be in Washington.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 13—That serene patch niched in the heart of midtown, Bryant Park, has become known as the Psychopath Plaza. For some reason it has become the rendezvous of unfortunates who might be labeled off in public institutions.

O. O. McIntyre

Aside from the human wrecks who smirk and strell along its pleasant walks, it is the evening starting place for vacuing blondes fresh from finger waves waiting for the lights, then drift to nearby Broadway and Fifth avenue.

It's also the stamping ground for those fever bright-eyed harmless fellows who sponsor Lost Causes. Long-haired and barefoot John the Baptists. And zealots who pass out atheistic tracts and with, without urging, launch an oratorical harangue against the Deity.

No one can saunter through the park without being twigged in some way or other. Authorities so far have adopted a "Hands Off" policy on the theory such segregation is preferable to habitues scattering.

There are more interesting spots for the visitor to the Metropolis.

Anna May Wong, home from her first visit to the land of her forefathers, became what the chit-chat choir calls "a rage." From the moment of arrival she was fairly rushed off her feet, not by natives but by members of various foreign colonies in Shanghai and Pieping.

Newspaper correspondents wrote she was besieged by the most eager crowds "since Chaplin." She met many of her father's relatives to whom she is The Golden Petal.

The Chinese as a race have snagged my curiosity since loafing days in Sam Lee's laundry back home. In every city where I have irked city editors I have had one or two Chinese friends—and there are not many Chinatowns I have not once-overed in America as well as the Limehouse quarter in London.

The Chinese mind is ever a mystery. Their friendships mellow until an attempt is made to discuss their families. Then, unless they know you well, they close up.

Mark Twain once inquired of a Chinese servant in Bermuda if he ever heard from his parents. The servant was on his way to the kitchen for an order—but never returned.

The former Marjorie Oelrichs, socialite who married the pearly-toothed orchestra leader, Eddy Duchin, keeps on working despite her young husband's mounting income conducting and on the radio. She is a deft decorator and her last fat assignment was Bun Valley Lodge, the new winter sports palace, which was conceived by W. Averell Harriman, and it is to be made into a fashionable ski spot this winter.

The most devout of the Broadway rhumbaists is George Sanchez, last of the rich Cuban sugar men. He comes to New York twice a year for a rhumba spree. While here he sleeps all day and is a familiar figure in the midnight palaces of dance, where he is a top spender. His wife who is always with him comes from Steve Hannagan's Lafayette, Ind.

Since Harold Ross finally flattened his bristly pompadour—the one Dorothy Parker wanted to wade through harefoot—no one has had more trouble with unruly locks than Quentin Reynolds, the sports writer. He has a mop of curly hair, and no matter how carefully he tries to plaster it down, on an evening he is all dressed up like anything it will pop up a la Jack in the box. Boo! He is a Brooklyn boy who lives with Deems Taylor in Connecticut in the summer.

The justly famed Diamond Jim Brady is immortalized in a "Diamond Jim" cafe and mammoth bar thrown open in the new building on the site of Hammerstein's Victoria. The window glyph is a golden horseshoe sparkling diamonds, a replica of the celebrated tie pin the bon-vivant and boulevardier used to wear in his more glittery moments. I noticed an oyster bar, but the Diamond Jim Special was not featured. At Rector's that was six dozen oysters on the half-shell, his way of starting a meal.

Philosophy on a New Haven campus. A sleepy-eyed, unwashed, uncombed student hurrying to his class and hailed by a "Say, Bill, don't you take a shower in the morning before starting out?"

"No," was the reply. "It doesn't make me dirty to sleep."

Piracy, Old and New

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

On dark nights, police patrol boats lurk in hideaways like pikes in a pond, watching for river and harbor pirates, giving swift chase when they see one. Rum Row merely becomes something else again when we change the law—it isn't put out of business. Neither are the bootleggers. Like law-abiding citizens, they are adaptable.

Edwin C. Hill

Waterfront racketeering around New York harbor, particularly, is rising again to its pre-prohibition levels. Ordinary piracy and freebooting had died down during John Syperon's temporary absence. Once again, it's a business taxing the police as never before, as the pirates get faster boats, better communications and better shore organizations. In the days of Captain Kidd, the dividing line between plain piracy and resistance to oppressive laws was sometimes hard to trace. Captain Kidd, at the start of his freebooting career, had some quite respectable affiliations. A number of New York Water Street merchants were allied with him.

In those days, England was fostering crime by stupid laws, just as in a later century we made bootlegging inevitable by a law "not grounded in reason and justice," in Blackstone's phrase.

OPPRESSIVE LAWS

Cloth made in Holland had to be sent to England to be reshipped to the colonies, with a tax for England and a profit for the English middleman. Virginia tobacco had to be sent to a French snuff maker, and the world went to England and France to the colonies. Molasses from the French West Indies, eagerly desired by the colonies for rum-making, had to reach us in the same round-about way. We were forbidden to make hats, caps or iron goods. All raw materials had to be sent to England for fabrication there.

All these leg-irons on a spirited people prepared them for resistance. Molasses, tea and cloth bootleggers swarmed along the coast, far beyond the ability of British ships to police them. Some of the great names and some of the great fortunes of early America had to those days of, socially, if not legally, sanctioned smuggling.

But, commendable as any brave resistance to British tyranny may have been, it shaded off into piracy, just as bootlegging—which many millions of law-abiding Americans sanctioned by their drinking—bootleg liquor—shaded off into countless skullduggeries, still to be eliminated.

For decades after the establishment of our government, piracy was a menace to shipping. Certain historians record that Britain made a deal with the murderous Barbary pirates of the Southern Mediterranean. They were paid an annual stipend, according to these accounts, for not molesting British ships. Crown records of those days indicate some pretty close-in deals with freebooters who were encouraged to raid any and all ships but the British.

We were a sturdy lot, then. In all this racketeering on the high seas, we managed to hold our own, to keep our ships going, and safey, as the years passed, and to plant the impress of a strong and self-reliant nationality on the rest of the world.

A VICTORY FOR LAW

But, clear up to the middle of the last century there were mysterious "higher-ups" always being uncovered in deals which otherwise looked like overt criminal piracy. And then, as now, there was traceable through many intermediaries a pattern of law evasion, leading from a many-legged desk to a black cove on a dark night.

One of my friends, a former professor of history in a New England college, has deduced from this background a theory that America would leadership in law-breaking is due to the fact that it had to get its start by law-breaking.

Personally, this department thinks there was a lot more in our beginnings than law-breaking. Our success in law-making, as well, stacks up as a rather impressive achievement in the world's history of self-government. As I see it, there has always been this borderland between law observance and crime.

In the long run, law has won, as in the above instance of the harbor pirates, what really done becomes a problem of police efficiency rather than a concern of legislation there. Agents of G. Edgar Hoover and his G-men find in this No Man's land of semi-respectability their most difficult terrain.

We could cite at least one still continuing American fortune founded in piracy—large-scale piracy however, rather than petty thuggery of the current river rats. In the bloodstream of the forbearer, the crime virus is not always easy to isolate.

'Dear Govt.'

By Winston Norman

Mr. Roosevelt
c/o Mr. Farley
Dear Mr. President:

My heather-in-law Jake sat me to write you on acct. he don't write as good as me. Jake wants to tell you that he agrees a 100 per cent with that speech you gave about Communism.

Me and Jake heard your speech, Mr. President, where you says that the Republicans had nothing except TALK about Communism, but you was the man that really went to work & DONE something about it.

That there is the truth, you can look out Jake if you don't believe what you says. Back in the days when Jake was a private man he couldn't make a Nickle out of being a Communist. Like you know, Mr. President, Communism was just like Banking in 1932, there wasn't no money in it. But then you & Mr. Hopkins begun giving the Communists relief, and they soon got back on their feet like other kinds of business.

Jake told all his friends about it, he says there was good profits in Communism under the New Deal. So lots of his friends took it up, and by 1936 Communism was a big U. S. Business.

So Jake & thousands of happy new Communists owes it all to you, Mr. President, because you was the man that really done something about Communism, you put it on a Paying Basis.

Jake is peaking over my shoulder, he says he is a little worried about one part of your speech, where you says you dident want no support from the Comunist, and you sounded kind of mad.

Jake hopes you wasn't really mad at him, Mr. President. He hopes you will keep on feeding him with Govt. Money, because he says you was sure right in the man up in Alaska that tried to stop feeding the Wolf.

It seems that this man had a pretty mean-looking Wolf around his cabin, so he figgered if he fed the Wolf, it would be happy and go away. He put some meat outside the door, and the Wolf was so happy that he went & got a whole Pack of wolves to help eat the meat that the nice man was feeding him.

Well, Mr. President, Jake says that the man kept on feeding wolves till the meat run out, and then the wolves at the man.

Yours truly,
ME AND JAKE.
